Survivors Laud Luck To Be Alive

COALHURST, Alta., Dec. 10.—"God, but we are lucky to be here," exclaimed Frank Brusik today from his cot in the Coalhurst hospital. Despite burns and bruises, Frank was one of the "lucky" miners who escaped death late Monday in the mine of the Lethbridge Collieries Limited here. Sixteen of his fellow workers lay dead in morgues today.

His hands and arms swathed in bandages, blisters marking his cheeks and his seared ears causing him to wince occasionally, Brusik related his escape from death. Two companions in nearby beds corroborated each statement.

"It was quitting time. We started to walk out. We pass men going on shift,' he related. 'They say to us 'You go home!' We say, 'Yes, goodbye.' We go 50 feet more, swinging our dinner pails and talking. Suddenly, fire, like mighty wind, come. Quick explosion. I think this is the finish.'

For 20 minutes, Brusik and his companions crawled on hands and knees toward the shaft and safety. He continued:

"We tried to protect our eyes. Coal dust swirl everywhere. Pretty soon we stagger out. We were pretty lucky. I think sparks from telephone wire cause explosion, maybe."

SILVER MART IN COLLAPSE

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Flooded with heavy offers from the far east, the London silver market collapsed today and all dealings were suspended as brokers locked themselves in the exchange and refused to set a price in the absence of offers from the United States.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Wall Street advices indicating a lack of bids for silver in the London market precipitated heavy selling of silver ferrous metal shares in the New York stock exchange today.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—In the temporary absence of Secretary Morgenthau, United States treasury officials today refused comment on the collapse of the London silver market because of a lack of buyers.

BRITISH DENY TROOP SHIPS

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 10.—Officials of the Cunard White Star Line today denied reports certain ships of the line would shortly be converted to use as troopships by the British government.

Reports Sunday said the Canadian Pacific liner Montclare and one or more Cunarders would be placed under charter to the Admiralty. Officers of both lines in Montreal today said they had not been advised of any such plan.

Mussolini Ignores All Peace Efforts: Continues Warfare

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The foreign office announced today Great Britain was resuming negotiations with France for the perfection of a plan to end war between Italy and Ethiopia, lending credence to reports the cabinet had summarily rejected a tentative agreement.

ROME, Dec. 10.—Premier Mussolini persisted today in his efforts to take by warfare what other powers were debating conceding him by peace negotiations—a strip of Ethiopia.

An encouraging promotion, informed Italian sources said, sent Gen. Rudolfo Graziani more determinedly than ever after subjugation of south-eastern Ethiopia.

Il Duce's swift-moving, hard-fighting commander on the Somaliland front was raised from the rank of Corps Commander to "Army Commander," remaining in charge of Italy's southern armies.

"If reports of the Franco-British proposals for peace, drawn up by Premier Pierre Laval and Foreign Minister Sir Samuel Hoare had reached Mussolini, he still took no public notice of them."

Italians and his premier, delivered at the opening of the senate sessions yesterday, to "defend strenuously" their interests and rights, both "African and European."

Il Duce still gave no indication, however, as to whether this "defence" would be maintained on the East African battlefields or transferred to the European council tables.

With official notice of the Franco-British peace program not yet presented to Mussolini to prompt his answer, informed sources said Il Duce was awaiting a "best offer" by those nations.

Grand Opportunity Is Now At Hand To Assist Wounded Men

It's a long way to Tipperary,
It's a long way to go;
It's a long way to Tipperary
And my sweetest girl I know:
So it's "good-bye" Picadilly
"Farewell" Leicester Square—
It's a long, long way to Tipperary
But my heart's right there.

Way back in 1914 the youth of the nation hearkened unto the clarion call of battle and thousands of young men called forth to wage war on behalf of King and Country. They swung down city streets with bands playing, flags flying, girls cheering and with promises ringing in their ears of good times and good things when they came back.

Lying on little white hospital cots in the Military Ward of the University Hospital are nearly 100 of the boys who marched so gaily away in those good old days. They heard the girls cheering and saw the flags waving.

They gave their blood in far away France and Flanders in order that right might triumph over might.

Now, more than 17 years after the armistice, they are still suffering from wounds and other disabilities received in action. Theirs is not a happy lot. They have suffered because they served their country.

It is to help these boys lighten the mental burden they are carrying in battling the ravages of wounds that The Bulletin once more has opened its columns to receive subscriptions to the Not Forgotten Fund, which is designed to provide comforts and good things for the boys at Christmas.

It is just a reminder that they are not forgotten—that the promises made when they marched away are not forgotten.

Each and every one can participate in the Not Forgotten Fund. No donation is too large and none too small. Send in your donation today and it will be acknowledged in these columns.

MAYORS PRESENT RELIEF DEMANDS: AWAITING ACTION

HIGH PRAIRIE FARMERS PLAN SOCRED TREK

Expect to Gain Recruits In On-to-Edmonton March For Dividends

Farmers from High Prairie and other northerly points in the Peace River district are already laying plans for a trek on Edmonton when the legislature is in session if present scales are not materially increased or if Social Credit dividends are not in force by that time according to commercial travellers and loan company and mortgage company representatives who have just returned from that territory.

"Rightly or wrongly they believe that they were promised the first Social Credit dividend by "Christmas and they are going to find out why it is not forthcoming," said a traveller today.

Last week a meeting of High Prairie and district farmers was held and initial plans for the On-to-Edmonton march were discussed. It is planned to collect recruits along the route and converge on Edmonton by car, wagon, rail or freight during the time the legislature is in session so that their demands may be duly heard by the house.

Conditions in some of the northern areas are desperate, floods, frost and hail having combined to put the farming communities on the relief rolls, and the municipalities, giving only the barest necessities.

CAIRO STREET FIGHTS HALTED

CAIRO, Dec. 10.—Street fighting except for the widely scattered small clashes, subsided today in Cairo after a month of intermittent battles between Nationalists and police.

The peace followed an announcement in the Arabic press that Egyptian political parties had agreed to present a solid front against alleged British domination.

City Executives Reach End Of Purse

OTTAWA, Dec. 10.—Ontario prospects that relief be split up into two classes, the normally indigent, and those on relief by reason of depression. Premier Hepburn suggests provinces take over the total cost normally of the indigent on the same basis as Mothers Allowance for instance, while the Dominion take over 75 per cent of the depression relief, leaving 15 per cent borne by provinces and ten per cent by the municipalities.

OTTAWA, Dec. 10. — The mayors of six major Canadian cities who proposed Monday to the Dominion-provincial conference that the federal government should take over and assume the entire cost of unemployment relief, decided last night to remain over in Ottawa for a couple of days to wait and see what action is taken on their request.

They held an informal meeting last night on their reception by Prime Minister King and the nine provincial premiers. While pleased with the promise of consideration by the prime minister and others the mayors agreed to press that matter further in a diplomatic manner.

Tuesday, the mayoralty deputation, which forms the continuing committee of the dominion conference of mayors, will offer their services to the sub-committee of the parley on the unemployment problem headed by Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of labor.

During the day they will make an informal call on Tweedsmuir, the governor general.

CANADA TRADE PACT DEFENDED

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace offered his "considered judgment" today that American agricultural gains from the Canadian reciprocal trade treaty "so far outweigh the losses that the net advantage to our agriculture as a whole is very much worth while."

He welcomed constructive criticism, in an address prepared for delivery at the closing annual American farm bureau federation convention, but declared:

"The other kind of attack—the bitter, venomous kind—is not inspired by any desire to help farmers of this country. I believe such unbridled assaults are inspired rather by the same interests which ... have fought every attempt by the farmers to gain economic fair play."

B. N. A. ACT IS UNDER DEBATE BY PREMIERS

Control "In Canada" Discussed by Provincial Conference

By THOS. WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, Dec. 10.—The control of the British North America Act by Canada instead of by the Imperial parliament was discussed by the constitutional committee of the Dominion-provincial conference this morning.

Lapointe, urbane, conciliatory, sat in the Senate railway room surrounded by some of the premiers and all the attorneys-general of the provinces. He told them of the many discussions and studying of the B.N.A. Act and the committee expounded its varied views.

Three main issues were presented: the need for amending of the B.N.A. Act "in Canada," the method of amending and the amendments to be made.

VIEWS DIFFER

Other conferences and discussions on the constitution have always ended in a dozen irreconcilable views tenaciously held. This conference, with Lapointe smoothing things over really got on to a road to agreement.

First the committee found common ground in the belief that the Act should be amended and made great headway in the direction of a modus operandi.

The first principle to be agreed

REVOLT CITED OVER PEACE

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Persistent reports circulated today that some sections of British officialdom and parliament were in revolt over the way Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's government was handling Italo-Ethiopian peace negotiations.

As the cabinet met in an emergency session again to discuss the peace proposals, the strictest official silence was maintained on overnight developments, which included rumors, later denied, that Anthony Eden, British minister for League of Nations affairs intended to resign.

Members of parliament stated openly the house of commons was in a ferment of discontent over the government's action in the peace move, and said the government may be questioned about the negotiations in a debate on the floor of the house.

Premiers Gather In Epochal Conference To Battle For Good

By THOS. WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, Dec. 10.—From the high wall of the railway committee room of the House of Parliament, the Fathers of Confederation looked down yesterday on the recreation of their epochal conference, the statesmen of 1864 gazed down on their successors of 1935.

Ten premiers and a score of cabinet ministers ranged in a hollow square in the great railway room, the wide white room that has seen in its time political negotiations made and broken, statesmen elevated and sent into oblivion, national policies born and political shibboleths buried.

In this room the bitter fights over church union took place. Here the customs probe almost wrecked a government. It was in this chamber that the Bonarmonia deal was aired, the intrigue against the Canadian National Railways unearthed. Delegations of labor men, of Communists, of war veterans, thronged this room to lay their pleas before government.

Where the conference opened yesterday a portrait of William Ewart Gladstone the great Liberal statesman, stood on an easel. Above it on the white wall was a huge pencil drawing, the original sketch of the Confederation conference. The artist made this sketch and from it completed his famous painting. The great fire of 1917 destroyed the historic picture, and a long hunt unearthed this original sketch, now treasured for its contemporary conception.

From that large picture on the wall, to the living picture on the floor was but a glance, but 71 years measured the march of time. Where Macdonald stood in formal rose, tall and leonine, there stood Mackenzie King, short, robust, unfling. Macdonald was surrounded by a score of conflicting statesmen.

16 MEN DIE IN BLAST AT SOUTH MINE

ous and arduous work by rescue crews, were brought to the surface early Sunday. By 3 a.m. they had all been identified and the bodies released for burial preparation.

Greatest mine disaster in the history of the Lethbridge field, first opened in 1883, the victims will be accorded a public funeral, probably Thursday. Late today an inquest will open with Coroner Dr. J. D. Fowler of Lethbridge in charge. After formal identification is made, adjournment will be made pending an investigation by mines officials.

BODIES BROUGHT UP

While sobbing men and women, relatives and friends, lined about the pithead, the bodies were brought to the surface. Each was on a stretcher, covered with a white sheet. In a temporary morgue—the mine's powerhouse building—the bodies were placed row-by-row to await identification.

All had met instant death, and each had suffered terrible burns and bruises as the blast swept a section of the 600-foot level one mile from the surface. Relatives were unable to make positive identification of any of the men whose faces were blackened. Many had suffered horrible head wounds.

DISKS IDENTIFY

Identification was established by tiny metal disks worn by each miner to indicate his check number—the mine's employment card. When identification had been proven, a label, with its proper name, was attached to each body.

Until the last body had been identified—at 4 a.m.—crowds milled around the mines buildings as cold wind swept coal black dust into dust clouds around the ground. Royal Canadian Mounted Police stood guard about the mine tipple keeping the crowd back and making way for the rescue workers as they went about the grim task of removing the dead.

When identification had been completed at the temporary morgue, the bodies were removed to the undertaking parlors in the little town of 1,000 population.

GRIEF-STRICKEN KIN

Grief-stricken wives and children of the victims were assisted to their homes; friends and comrades of the dead miners left the mine property and early today it was deserted throughout the town of disaster.

Only in the odd home was a light visible—here a wife or child mother mourned. Many children were fatherless today—more than a score had lost a parent.

Coalhurst today was destined to be a "ghost town." Plans had been made to abandon the mine in the spring. But now it was believed it would be re-opened at the top speed of production 700 miners had found employment, but depression had curtailed the output, and only employment had been known in the district for many months until this year.

Two weeks ago 200 men were employed in the pit, but with mild weather, orders had slackened and only a skeleton crew was going on duty when the fatal blast rocked the mine. It was the night crew that met death. Not one escaped.

"They walked right into death," said members of the mines rescue crews. "They never had a chance."

Thirty workers were in the mine when the explosion came. Eleven of the day crew were near the shaft, far from the blast-scene, and came to the surface without injury. Three other day men nearer the explosion and cave-in were injured, all suffering severe burns and bruises.

None was injured seriously and hospital reports this morning were favorable.

The bodies of the men who "walked into death" as the night shift went on duty, were recovered by miles of debris left in the wake left by a cave-in which followed the explosion. First rescue squads came on five bodies and then, several hours later, dug their way through the debris to find the night shift had been accounted for.

FOLLOWS EDMONTON FIRE

The Coalhurst blast followed within 12 hours a fire at the Kent Collieries, Ltd., four miles from Edmonton, when 56 men clambered to safety.

The hoist house and other surface buildings of the Kent property were destroyed by fire, but the mine itself was undamaged.

Like a roll of thunder, the Lethbridge blast was first felt by surface workers shortly before 4 p.m. Soon after came a telephone call from the mine office.

John Ramage, one of the miners who escaped safely, told of the tragedy. He and his partner were working near the main driveway in the 600-foot level, when a terrific blast hit them both. Ramage was flung to the ground and stunned between a wooden timber post and a side wall. His face and hair were singed and his body bruised. Helping his partner, he made his way to the shaft and reported by telephone to the mine's office.

What caused the explosion may never be known. One theory was that coal dust, which the Coalhurst mine had ignited gas in the mine, another was that a small fire, started by spontaneous combustion, could have ignited the fine particles of coal dust floating through the workings.

MINE YARD CROWDED

Grief-stricken, through the long hours until the fatal word from the pithead, the pithead's wives and children of the doomed men crowded the mine's yard. Hundreds of other residents of the district, too, crowded the yard, awaiting word of the fate of friends and relatives.

Accidents had occurred in the long history of the mine—operated since 1912—but this was the first time death had taken its toll.

NIGHT-LONG VIGIL

Some of the grief-stricken women were taken to their homes, but after them, were taken to their homes by friends when word was received that all hope had been abandoned. Others, with tear-stained faces, planned a night-long vigil by the mine's gate, and refused to the surface.

Hope died and torn by the terrific force of the death-dealing blast, the bodies were reported to be blackened by unidentifications.

NEARLY WORKED OUT

The Coalhurst mine is located across the Old Man river, eight miles west of Lethbridge on the Crow's Nest highway. It was opened 43 years ago by the North Coalmines Collieries limited, operating Lovatt and Greenshields of Montreal. At the peak of production, 700 men were employed at its workings. Practically worked out, plans had been made to abandon the mine in the spring.

ORIGIN IS MYSTERY

Origin of the explosion remained a mystery today. One theory was that sparks from a telephone circuit in the mine had ignited the gas. Another was a cave-in. After tons of rocks, coal and timbers had been removed, bodies were found and later the last one was reported in the debris.

The blast was apparently an explosion of gas," said R. Livingstone, manager of the Lethbridge Collieries in an official statement. "But the cause has not been established. All the men were equipped with safety lamps."

TELLS OF HORROR

A member of the first rescue crews to enter the mine, John Connors, told of the horror in the doomed pit.

"There was gas, dust, smoke," he said. "First we saw the bodies of two men, smashed by the explosion beyond recognition. Three other close by had met the same fate as the debris two hours later.

"Nearby was the glow and wrench belonging to the men who were injured by the explosion. All the men had been killed instantly," he said.

Search For Gold Led To Discovery

COALHURST, Alta., Dec. 10.—A search for gold led to the discovery of "black diamonds"—coal—in the Lethbridge mining field, it was learned Monday, in the Lethbridge Collieries mine, 16 men were killed in an explosion.

Nicholas Sheran, a pioneer prospector for precious metals, in his hunt for gold, found dead coal deposits in the district half a century ago. From his find grew a great commercial industry which in prosperous years had given work to hundreds. Sparks from a telephone circuit in the mine had ignited the gas. Another was a cave-in. After tons of rocks, coal and timbers had been removed, bodies were found and later the last one was reported in the debris.

The blast was apparently an explosion of gas," said R. Livingstone, manager of the Lethbridge Collieries in an official statement. "But the cause has not been established. All the men were equipped with safety lamps."

SURVIVOR OF MINE BLAST TELLS STORY

"Fire Came Like Mighty Wind, Then Terrific Explosion"

COALHURST, Alta., Dec. 10—From his cot in the Coalhurst hospital, Andrew Kocej, who escaped death in the explosion at the Lethbridge Collieries mine Monday, when 16 of his companions were killed, related his story last night.

"We had just passed other men going into mine about three minutes before the explosion," he said. "We were coming out. As we passed the pipe man, by name of Greal, said 'You go home!' I answered 'yes.'

TERRIFIC BLAST

"We went about 50 feet. We saw sparks and fire. Then fire came like a mighty wind. There was a terrific explosion. It knocked me down, and threw me on rails. My knee was cut to the bone. I thought the air pipe had broken, but that wasn't it."

Kocej's belief was that a spark from telephone wires in the mine ignited gas causing the explosion. He is clothing was burnt, his hair singed, his eyebrows burned off. His face, hands and his arms and hands are swathed in bandages.

GAS SMELL TERRIBLE

"After the explosion we threw away our dinner pails and crawled on hands and knees for 20 minutes to reach the shaft," he added. "The smell of gas was terrible. I choked, couldn't breathe for some minutes. Fire, rocks, dust all over, big noise, couldn't see. Crowded face with hands and crawled out."

Japanese Plan To Seize U.S., Russia, World

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Clyde Pangborn, world aviator to fly both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans non-stop, told the United States congressional committee investigating patent laws today that both New York and Chicago were within the cruising range of Japanese bombing planes.

The aviator, who was arrested by Japanese for flying over their fortifications, testified before the committee on patent revision that Japan "has one object in view:

"1—To seize the United States;

"2—To seize Russia;

"3—To seize the rest of the world."

upon was that the Act was the joint property of the Dominion and the provinces and that no action should be taken. Hitherto, it has been held in some quarters that the Act being an Imperial statute, could only be amended by the Imperial parliament on joint resolution of the Commons and Senate and without consultation of the provinces.

RIGHT TO AMEND

It has now been conceded that the province has rights, and the principal achievement of today's meeting was the arrival at the understanding that the mode of procedure to get for Canada the right to amend its own constitution, rather than ask the Imperial parliament to make amendments from time to time.

Premier Taschereau followed every word of the discussion with keen interest as champion of the rights of the French-Canadian minority. In point of fact, Lapointe carries stronger weight in Quebec now than Taschereau and his broadening influence has toned the voice of the minority.

The question of the actual amendments to be made will be further considered and probably be left for the future. The first step is to get from Westminster such amendments as will give Canada would enable Canada to make future amendments as may be necessary.

AGRICS MEETING

The committee on agriculture and marketing, aimed first at the coordination of provincial agricultural services in Canada and occupied itself this morning with that phase of its work. Its recommendations to be taken up later in the session.

Gardiner was quietly at the head of the committee in one of the Senate committee rooms, saying little. He figured on behalf of the more progressive lines. The Dominion tabled for the delegates a comprehensive review of the services it renders in the way of experimental farms, the dairy and cold storage branches, livestock, seed and entomology, fruit and economics, and pointed out where co-ordination was occurring.

With this as a starting point the provincial delegates expressed their views as to the best method of dealing with the various problems of agriculture, whether these should be centralized under dominion control or decentralized under provincial operation. Duncan Marshall, from his long and varied experience gave the delegates behalf of Ontario, and the ministers of agriculture and exports from the other provinces followed.

DUNNING PRESIDES

The third committee was that on finance, where Hon. Charles Dunning presided.

The finance committee sounded like the wailing wall at Jerusalem. It heard the various provinces tell its wail of woe and present astronomical figures as to its expenditures on relief. The long line of finance listened wearily to the long parade of poverty and in the end will file away the various figures and problems greater than theirs.

Some of the provinces wanted back to back grants from the Dominion; others wanted the relief taken over and could carry the normal charges; others said they would need further loans to carry their debts; others, by concrete conclusions, have arrived at the morning being taken up by the lugubrious tales.

PROVIDE FIREWORKS

Of the three committees, that on the constitution provided most fireworks. On the principle that Quebec should have the right to amend her own constitution, Quebec delegates are battling afraid of being submerged by the power of the other provinces. On the plan that provinces and dominion should all be unanimous on such amendments there were protests from the west. Why should the Senate, a non-elective body, be consulted? Quebec came back with the riposte that the Senate could not be ignored. The western members were somewhat impatient over Quebec's attitude, Ontario Liberal leaders but Lapointe kept the going fairly smooth under the circumstances.

The first to break away from the committees was Hepburn, who Wednesday of the first meeting before one o'clock to keep a luncheon engagement at Laurier House, which may mean the final healing of the breach between the Dominion and Ontario Liberal leaders.

ROOSEVELT TO GET SUPPORT ON NEW DEAL

President and Farm Bureau Federation Shakes Hands

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—President Roosevelt and the American Farm Bureau Federation shook hands Monday on the new deals agricultural program.

His recital of triumphs claimed for measures to restore rural purchasing power—frequently interrupted by cheers from the estimated 10,000 persons attracted to the opening session of the federation's annual convention—was capped by pledges of support for Roosevelt farm policies from the organization's president, Edward O'Neal.

DELIVERS OPENING BID

In International Amphitheatre, at the stockyards, Chapel of the Cornbelt which has been looked on as one of the chief battlefields of the 1936 campaign, the president delivered what many observers regarded as his opening bid for farm ballots.

Then from Chicago, accompanied by Postmaster-General James Farley, he proceeded to South Bend, Ind., where he pointed to the traditional dignity of the Notre Dame University.

SOME MISTAKES

In his Chicago speech, the president admitted "some mistakes" in the general recovery program but declared that economic vitality was returning. He assailed his critics as "calamity howlers" and character-ized opposition as a curse of "American life," asserted his agricultural undertakings had wrought an increase of $3,000,000,000 in farm income in the past 2½ years; claimed a general increase in trade with foreign countries and the whole recovery trend would rebound to the benefit of farm producers; and asserted that farmers had shared in "net benefits" of a reviving agriculture.

As the president spoke, another act of the political drama involving the agricultural adjustment administration was being played in Washington.

TO AMEND

Three government counsel argued orally for it before the supreme court, which may decide its fate in the Hoosac Mills case.

NO SUBSTITUTES

The president, however, in his address offered no substitutes for the A.A.A. and made no mention of its constitutionality. He answered some criticism that it was an unfair grab of power by centralization to a domain reserved for the states, by declaring:

"Forty states operate sovereign states, acting each one as a separate unit, never were able and never will be able to solve by state legislation individual laws adequately to balance the agricultural life of a nation so predominantly dependent upon the internationally grown crops of many kinds."

Of the trade treaty with Canada which "dispensers of discord" contend victimized the farmers, the president said:

"I am sure that the great majority of American farmers will be fair in their judgment. Agriculture, far from being crucified by this agreement, some have told you, actually gains from it.

"We expect more agricultural products to be exported and more imported from her. We shall continue to do so.

"If the quality howlers should happen to be right, you have every assurance that Canada and the United States will settle any resulting iniquities. But I do not believe for a single moment that the calamity howlers are right."

SENSATIONAL TALE OF CONSPIRACY TO BE TOLD CORONER

$15,000 Robbery of Banque Provinciale du Canada Led to the Death of Two Men.

HULL, Que., Dec. 10.—Quebec police last night brought to Hull jail the thirteenth person held in connection in the slaying of Armand Nadeau and theft of $15,000 from the Banque Provinciale du Canada.

The man, unidentified, was taken into a room in the jail and questioned by four detectives. All efforts to learn his name failed.

MONTREAL, Dec. 10.—Story of a sensational bank robbery conspiracy that subsequently led to the death of two men and through its long, complicated stages may involve nearly a score of persons, including men employed or formerly employed by the victimized bank, will be told in Hull Tuesday at the inquest into the slaying of Armand Nadeau, a bookkeeper still in his teens.

Eleven persons now held are "directly connected" with the $15,000 robbery that led to the murder of Nadeau, 20-year-old Banque Provinciale Du Canada clerk, and one of the bandits who made away with the money at the time of the holdup near Hull last Wednesday. His fellow employee, Paul LaDuke, also held here as material witness along with an unannounced number of others.

MYSTERY SOLVED

Louis Jargaille, chief of provincial detectives, said Monday all the mystery enshrouding the robbery and slaying had been solved. But he declined to reveal details other than to say 11 persons were directly connected with the case. He said "possibly 15 or 16" persons were in custody. Three of them at least have supplied the whole story in confessions to police, officers said.

Slayer of young Nadeau was named by Joseph Emile Watson, alias Ted Martin, 40-year-old Russian who four years ago abandoned his butter counter in Springfield, Mass., and started a career that led him through various phases of crime. He is the violent death yesterday at the hands of a provincial detective.

NO MOB SOUGHT

One more man who police said was at the head of the gang along with Martin, is still being sought. Jargaille said the same was true of Alfred Herman Laroche or Larocque.

Armed squads are intensifying their search for Laroche, Jargaille said, but no mob is being sought. Officers had been given instructions similar to those given Detective-Sergeant Arthur Bisaillon when he picked squad to Martin's rooms Yesterday with orders to kill if necessary.

Martin's admission of killing a man near Hull and his boast that he would avenge the death of "pals" were related to a coroner's jury by Laura Cote of Ottawa, who said she lived for a time in the flat next door to a rendezvous near Montreal the day after Nadeau's death. The woman previously had told police of her ride with Martin and it was on information thus obtained detectives were warned to take no chances with their quarry.

The government, finally suppressed, immediately brought a formal Japanese protest.

Lt. Col. Ten Yahichiki, Japanese military attache here, made strong representations in a call on Mayor Wang Yen-Chun.

Thirty students were arrested and many were hurt in a clash with police.

DENOUNCE PROGRAM

Marching into the central shopping district after having been dispersed once, the students carried banners denouncing provincial autonomy program. Under it they said, China will be split and "lose her independence."

Police and firemen drenched the students with icy waters and the demonstrators fled in confusion up. Authorities closed the city gates to prevent 1,000 other students from neighboring institutions from entering.

ABANDON PLAN

Despite the demonstration, the official Japanese News Agency said the establishment of a political council for Hopeh and Chahar provinces under autonomous settlement in the autonomy movement, probably would be announced momentarily.

HAUPTMANN'S CHANCES OF EVADING CHAIR FADE

U.S. HIGH COURT REFUSES REVIEW HIS CONVICTION

JERSEY HEAD DENIES HE'LL SAVE BRUNO

Gov. Hoffman Declares Untrue He's Pledged to Hauptmann

TRENTON, N.J. Dec. 10.—Governor Harold Hoffman said today any representations he had pledged himself to save Bruno Richard Hauptmann from the electric chair were "absolutely untrue."

"I have never expressed to any one," the Governor said, " an opinion as to Hauptmann's guilt or innocence."

Asked whether he had been advised by Egbert Rosecrans, a defence attorney, at a conference yesterday that he had power to commute Hauptmann's sentence to life imprisonment regardless of the vote of other members of the court of pardons, the Governor said: "I'll deny that."

The Journal quoted "Highest sources" for its statement that the governor has "definitely made up his mind about Bruno—that he will seek to snatch him from the shadow of the electric chair even in the teeth of a contrary vote by the board of pardons."

The disclosure, the Journal said, "threatened one of the greatest political upheavals in New Jersey's history."

The Journal said the governor had been informed he had the legal right to commute a death sentence himself.

Girls Suffer In Escape From Calgary School

CALGARY, Dec. 10.—Severe injuries were suffered by two former inmates of the Mountview Home for Girls while trying to "escape" from the Calgary institution the city council committee appointed to inquire into charges of improper administration at the home was told here yesterday.

The city council committee was named to investigate charges made two weeks ago by Mrs. Jean McWilliams, who said the institution was not properly conducted.

Replies of Mrs. McGinnis and J. J. Petrie, city solicitor, will be heard next Monday when the committee meets again.

Board Appointment

The investigation is believed a preliminary move to transfer the camp to jurisdiction of the department of labor.

Only Two Avenues Remain Open to Convicted Slayer of Lindbergh Baby.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's chances of escaping the electric chair were definitely narrowed Monday when the Supreme Court of the United States, in a one-word verdict, refused to review his conviction for the murder of tiny Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

ONLY TWO AVENUES

Only two avenues remained open to the one-time German army machine gunner. One is an appeal for clemency to the New Jersey Board of Pardons. The second is a petition for a new trial if fresh evidence can be found.

Hauptmann's counsel promptly asserted at Trenton, N.J., that the defence was considering asking for a new trial on the basis of evidence not yet disclosed.

BODY FOUND

The curly-haired, 20-months-old child was snatched from his cradle on the night of March 1, 1932. The skull-crushed body was found in a thicket near the Lindbergh home in New Jersey on May 12. Hauptmann was arrested on Sept. 19, 1934, allegedly after passing part of the $50,000 ransom money paid by Colonel Lindbergh for the return of his child.

BRUNO COUNSEL WILL CARRY ON

TRENTON, N.J., Dec. 10.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's attorneys will carry on their fight to save him from the electric chair in spite of the adverse ruling of the supreme court of the United States which Monday denied Hauptmann's request for a review of his Fleminton trial.

"I'm disappointed at the news," Lloyd Fisher, one of Hauptmann's attorneys, said at his Flemington office today. "The decision of the court will not have a very great bearing on what we are doing. We shall carry on our investigation."

Asked if this indicated that new evidence has been discovered, Fisher said it did.

UNEMPLOYMENT MAIN PROBLEM OTTAWA MEET

Premiers Promise Provincial Co-Operation at Dominion Parley

OTTAWA, Dec. 10.—Launched by Prime Minister Mackenzie King amid expressions from the premiers of all of the nine provinces of a determination to approach their difficulties in a spirit of co-operation, the dominion-provincial conference got down to work today on the many problems facing the dominion—unemployment and relief.

Under the chairmanship of Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of labor, this committee was the first of the six to report, and its afternoon's deliberations, according to the official press summary, resulted in agreement upon the necessity of separating relief of unemployed from care of the unemployable. The committee will continue tomorrow.

WORK PLAN

The official press summary was, in part, as follows:

"It was generally recognized that the distinction between unemployed and unemployable which had tended to become blurred in practice, should be restored and that the problem of relieving those normally in receipt of unemployed relief should be kept separate from the problem of providing for or maintenance for men willing and able to work but unable to find it as a result of the prolonged economic depression.

TOO SERIOUS

"Under normal conditions the first problem, which is chronic, was recognized as a direct responsibility of the municipalities. The other and major problem, which has been greatly magnified under present economic conditions, is obviously far too serious for them to cope with. Opinions differ as to whether or not responsibility for the support of these unemployed can be and willing to work should be borne by the Dominion and provinces and as to the proportion in which this financial burden could be most equitably divided.

FURTHER STUDY

"The present condition of government action resulting in a direct re-employment and in the creation of employment under conditions where the extension of employment by private enterprise would once more be profitable would be the subject of further study."

In framing a comprehensive agenda, embodying the many pressing problems facing the provinces and the Dominion in common, Mr. Mackenzie King declared that while all problems could not be settled at once, every effort would be made to reached on matters of vital importance.

Statements by the provincial premiers were brief. Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario declared the conference could not afford to fail of accomplishment and he was confident it would not.

ATTACKS ACT

Premier Taschereau of Quebec attacked the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act passed by the last government, declaring it was "ruining the credit of the farmers." He also voiced strong expression of the belief that "the present Dominion government will go down in history as one brave enough to face the problems of the day." He believed history would be written at this conference.

The conference met in plenary session this morning, with the press admitted, but was broken up into six committees which will meet for the next three or four days in private.

HOPES FOR PLAN

It was the eighth Dominion-Provincial conference to be held since confederation, Mr. Mackenzie King recalled. He felt that it faced problems of unprecedented importance and expressed the hope it would result in a plan making for continuity and permanency.

While unemployment and relief were generally agreed to be the most pressing problem, they were closely allied with the question of amending the British North American Act—Canada's constitution. It was significant that one of the strongest committees was set up to deal with questions relating to the extent the constitution should be amended and the methods to be laid down in obtaining such amendments.

LAPOINTE IN CHAIR

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice and recognized authority on constitutional matters, was chairman of this committee. He will have associated with him all the attorneys general of the provinces and such other experts as may be desired.

Among the aims of the conference, as revealed by the agenda, is the creation of a national finance council to supervise provincial, Dominion and probably municipal borrowings. It was also indicated efforts would be made to obtain lower interest rates, remove overlapping of taxation and lower the cost of tax collections.

DOMINION IS ASKED TO BEAR RELIEF COSTS

been armed by the dominion conference of mayors with authority to call a general meeting of heads of municipalities throughout Canada if their objective is not achieved.

MAYORS ARE HOPEFUL

Several of the civic heads indicated last night they were hopeful that if the dominion government would not agree to accept the whole cost of relief then an arrangement may be achieved whereby the cost would be divided between the federal and provincial governments.

Canadian municipalities h a v e reached the end of their financial tether and face bankruptcy, representatives of the municipalities in the provinces were told when a delegation of mayors urged provinces to shoulder full cost of direct relief.

PLEA FOR AID

Prime Minister King and most of the provincial premiers heard mayors from Atlantic to the Pacific make their plea for financial assistance, but made no definite commitment in reply.

"What you have said," Premier King told the mayors, "will find its way into our discussions and I am sure will be very helpful to us. He thanked them for pointing out the magnitude of their problems.

Led by Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal, the mayors presented two things—to be relieved of direct relief costs and to be given access to the national fund for unfunding debts. They agreed if the provinces and the dominion granted their refunding plan they should be subject to regulations of a commission regarding future expenditures and revenues.

Indicating the magnitude of relief expenditures, Premier Hepburn interrupted one speaker to tell him 60 per cent of Ontario's revenues went for that purpose. On the other hand, Mayor Houde told of Montreal having $27,000,000 in tax arrears and being forced to borrow money at high rates.

Mayor Queen of Winnipeg went further than the other mayors. He wanted the Dominion and provinces to shoulder relief debts contracted by the municipalities. He said he found no support from Mayor Houde or the others.

Mayor Lovell McGeer of Vancouver stressed the necessity of refunding municipal debts. He believed the plan should be tied to the new system of credit with the Dominion issuing notes in the same way as the $24,000,000 note revenue producing projects.

He blamed British Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare for the critical situation in Egypt today.

REPLACEMENT LATTA BRIDGE NOW ORDERED

City to Build $44,000 Steel Structure—Work Starts Next Spring

Replacement of the existing Latta Road timber bridge with a $44,000 steel structure was ordered by the city council Monday night due to the fact that the present bridge has been ruled unsafe for traffic. It is expected that work on the new span will be started next spring.

BUILT IN 1910

City Engineer A. W. Haddow informed council that the timber bridge had been built in 1910. About 300 tons of steel would be used in the new structure, of which 90 tons would be steel salvaged in the construction work of the south approach of the high level bridge several years ago. Plus 110 tons of new steel would be required at a cost of $11,000. Out of the total estimated cost of $44,000 for the new bridge, $33,000 would be spent outside the city for new steel, the remainder being expended in Edmonton.

Opposing the proposal that the ravine be filled up as substitution for a bridge, Mr. Haddow warned council of the danger of such "fill" slowly giving away. This had occurred in other spots in the city he said.

STEEL BEST

The engineer also declared that a reinforced concrete bridge would not be satisfactory due to the fact it would not adjust itself in case of mining subsidence. A structural steel span would do this. Street car trackage will be left as at present, tracks passing around the head of the ravine west of the bridge.

COUNCIL ASKED PARE TAX RATE BY FIVE MILLS

Delegation Urges That Figure Not Exceed 50 For Next Year

Strongly urging a slash in the 1936 mill rate to 50, a five-mill cut as compared to the present levy of 55 mills, spokesmen for several taxpayers' organizations appeared before city council Monday night to press for stringent economy in the administration of the city during the coming year. The delegation was promised that representations would be heeded when estimates were considered and the rate struck.

FAVORS FORTY

Jas McCallum, representing the taxpayers' committee, declared the organization favored a rate of 40 mills but felt that if this were impossible, then a rate not higher than 50. He urged that the levy be struck early next year and that council adopt a plan providing for monthly tax payments. "The tax on property should be based on earnings and not on the alleged fixed value," Mr. McCallum opined. He was also of the opinion that property-holders were having to pay too heavy a "shot" and that imposition of an income tax would be a fairer method of distributing taxation over the whole population.

SCORES BRIDGE PLAN

Referring to the proposed construction of a $44,000 steel bridge across Latta Ravine to replace the existing timber structure, Mr. McCallum said he believed a "fill" was not necessary. He argued that if the steel structure were erected most of the money for the building would go out of the country.

Roy Webber, speaking for the Tax Reform League, suggested that the city issue 1936 tax notices as early as possible and that a discount be allowed on cash tax payments. Mr. Webber also supported a mill rate of 50 or lower, if possible.

RATE FIRST

Stating he was speaking for the Civic Government Association, G. W. Hadley said the executive committee representing all taxpayers' organizations was being formed to fight for a reduction in the mill rate and also to give the city all possible co-operation in this connection. He also asked that the tax rate not exceed 50 mills and that the rate be struck first and then the estimates be cut to conform with it. "The delegate stressed the fact that in many cases taxes on property amounted to about six months' rental value and he held that this was an unfair situation.

At this juncture, Mayor Clarke declared that further revenue could be obtained if taxes were increased on banks, insurance companies, "Rexall shops" and other financial institutions.

MINNEAPOLIS EDITOR SHOT AND KILLED

Prediction of Walter Liggett Comes True When Assassins Strike

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 10.—The assassination he predicted in the last issue of his weekly newspaper, has overtaken Editor Walter Liggett, stormy petrel of Minnesota politics and bitter foe of Governor Floyd B. Olson.

A killer in a darkened car last night poured five bullets into Liggett's back as, accompanied by his wife and 10-year-old daughter, Marda, he drove into an alley near his home.

At police headquarters Mrs. Liggett sobbed: "I will remember the killer's face as long as I live."

The police held Isadore Blumenfeld, alias Kid Cann, for questioning in the case after he submitted voluntarily for examination. He was suspected a year ago after an investigation of the passing of ransom money from the $200,000 Charles F. Urschel kidnapping case.

CLAIMS ALIBI

Blumenfeld, identified by the police as connected with the liquor business here, said he was in a barber shop shortly before the killing and could not have reached the scene in time to fire the fatal shots.

Also under investigation was a telephone conversation which Detective Captain Al J. Marvel said Liggett had yesterday with Meyer Schuldberg, president of a liquor distributing company.

Marsden said Liggett informed Schuldberg he was writing a series of articles on Schuldberg's activities.

He said Schuldberg let the editor $500 he was strong in his premises and suggested Liggett give government operatives his evidence if he thought it was true.

DEMANDED $1,500

In a formal statement to police Schuldberg said Liggett demanded $1,500 to "lay off."

Howard Guilford, 46, publisher of the weekly Saturday Press, an anti-Radical publication, was slain Sept. 6, 1934, six blocks from the spot where Liggett died.

The latest issue of Liggett's paper said he might be killed and demanded impeachment of Gov. Olson on graft charges.

THE "TRANSIENTS" AGAIN

The accountants at Ottawa suspect this province, or the municipalities in the province, of trying to "put something over" on the Dominion and refuse to pass an item of $274,000 included in the relief bill forwarded there for payment.

The $274,000 was spent by the municipalities, mainly by Edmonton and Calgary, in taking care of transients and other single unemployed men during the past year.

Since the Dominion long ago assumed responsibility for single unemployed men by setting up camps for them, and the province and municipalities have no way of controlling the movement of "transients," it is late in the day to raise a claim that the province or the municipalities should foot a bill of this kind.

It is probably correct to assume that the refusal to pass the item was based on a misapprehension, and that explanations will result in Ottawa paying. Should that not be done, the province and the municipalities would hereafter in self-protection be impelled to refuse relief to migrants and single men generally. It cannot be supposed the federal authority would want such men left hungry and shelterless in winter time.

THOSE AWFUL PAPERS

Before a large audience in Ottawa, Premier Aberhart repeated what he has said on a good many former occasions, that the press is not treating him fairly. He was very unfortunate, however, in the two items he selected to prove the point.

The Premier is quoted as telling his Ottawa audience: "The Canadian Press carried a despatch some time ago that I had ordered 25 Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen to come to Alberta to protect me because I had received some very threatening letters."

And again: "I never had any threatening letters. Not one."

To which the general manager of the Canadian Press promptly responded: "The Canadian Press has never stated Mounted Police were being moved into Alberta to protect Mr. Aberhart."

And in respect to the other allegation proceeded to cite the report of a broadcast delivered in Calgary on November 10th, in which the Premier definitely stated he had received a threatening letter.

So far as the accusation of unfairness is made against Alberta newspapers, the readers of these papers are the judges. Excepting one or two papers, no former Premier of this province has ever been treated with more complete immunity from criticism than Mr. Aberhart. The forbearance does not seem to be appreciated.

JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE

London despatches on the eve of the naval conference predicted a stormy gathering, quite liable to break up in disagreement and leave the nations entered in a free-for-all contest in ship-building with all treaty restraints off.

Britain proposes that all powers announce their building programs six years in advance.

France would agree to announce plans year by year only.

Japan demands the right to build on a parity with Britain and the United States, before considering anything else.

The Italian Ambassador stayed away from the preliminary meetings, and his representative had nothing to give out.

Germany's views were likewise left to the imagination of all parties concerned.

The one hopeful feature of the parley is that Britain and the United States appear to be in substantial accord on the question of setting bounds to construction. What chance there is of an agreement being reached apparently depends upon how far they can dominate the conference.

That there is any prospect of a decision to positively reduce the existing armies, no hint is given. The outlook for a stand-pat arrangement is not even mentioned. That an agreement can be made to keep construction within fixed limits is evidently hopeless, unless Japan's claim to parity is allowed.

In the absence of these alternatives, one outcome is in sight—failure to agree on anything, with every nation left free to build what, when, and as much as it may please.

THE KEY PROBLEM

The Dominion-provincial conference which opened in Ottawa yesterday is an event of major importance, mainly because of the circumstances which brought it about. It is not far wrong to regard the conference as a clearing house for depression problems and problems which the depression has thrust into prominence they would not otherwise have.

Chief among these is the question of unemployment, how to deal with it temporarily, and how to prevent it occurring on a nation-wide scale in future. This must take first place in the discussions, because it is the most urgent matter requiring attention, and also because most of the other subjects suggested for consideration are closely related to it or arise because of it.

Revision of the national constitution, reallotment of taxing powers as between the Dominion and the provinces, the financial predicaments in which some of the provinces find themselves, are all matters which stand connected with unemployment. Follow that question, and all these other issues come into view. In solving it, these and other questions will have to be dealt with.

Unemployment is the key difficulty with which federal and provincial Governments, and municipal councils as well, are struggling. If that can be settled, most of the others will disappear. What needs to be done, more than anything else, is to establish a condition in which every man shall be able at all times to earn a decent living for himself and his family. Unless effective measures to that end are taken, the conference will not have succeeded in its primary objective.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

You can't seem to get away from the sea and its call, no matter how far you go inland. Yesterday I was served with notice to appear as a judge in a forthcoming contest for the best model of H.M.S. Bounty—the famous old ship that figured in the South Sea mutiny of over a century ago.

J. S. Cowper

Today I received a Christmas letter from my sailor-brother Harry, now setting out on a round-the-world trip on S.S. Franconia, tell-me of his success as a marine artist.

Our father was lost at sea when I was a youth and Harry a little chap, since when I have stood in loco parentis to him, and feel a fatherly interest and pride in Harry's progress. It was always his ambition to become an artist, even when he was shipped to sea as a youngster of fourteen on a windjammer round Cape Horn, upon graduating from the Seaman's Orphanage. Eighteen months later—the crew still feeding on the measly pork and weevily biscuits they had started out with—Harry and four sailors were landed at the Azores blind with scurvy. A wealthy Portuguese planter identified him as the son of the English shipmaster who many years before had rushed to his aid on the waterfront of Singapore and fought off some armed Malays who sought to kill him. Luckily the blindness proved only to be temporary.

Hendrik Willem van Loon saw some of Harry's work while they were on the same ship on a trip through the South Seas, and introduced him to New York art circles. Before leaving Liverpool, where some of his work is on exhibition, Harry received a letter from John Masefield, British poet laureate, praising his work and asking if he will do him a work in oils. Can it be "The Wanderer of Liverpool" he wants painted that as a youngster I saw slide off the ways at Potter's Yard into the Mersey, and on which Masefield shipped as a sailor and later celebrated in verse?

While this column doesn't lack opinions, it is pleased at times to be found in the wrong. On the matter closed to the hopes of the indigent masses of people in Alberta, it hopes it will be proved wrong. It certainly has been proved wrong in the matter of the disposition of the great ocean queen Mauretania.

Contemplating the 26 years of undisputed reign as Queen of the Atlantic, we thought it horrible to send the noble craft to the shipbreakers. We suggested a more fitting end—to send her to mid-Atlantic with a skeleton crew, and with fitting ceremony of farewell, open her sea-cocks and let her sink slowly and quietly beneath the waves of her domain. But it appears that the trip to the shipbreakers has proved best after all—that and the chance that a man with the mind of a poet and the money of a millionaire, came into action.

The man is Walter Martin, chairman of Martins Ltd., well-known cigar firm in Piccadilly. Mr. Martin loves boats and has a place in Guernsey in the Channel Islands, where he likes to lounge and play at being a fisherman. He is chairman of a hotel company in Guernsey, too. Wanting some furniture and fittings for the hotel, he went aboard the Mauretania to see what he could buy. Impressed by the grandeur he bought lavishly. He got the thirty "millionaires' suites," the walnut smokeroom, the weathered oak dining saloon, the South African mahogany lounge, the maplewood drawing room, the tourist lounge and dressing room, all the best cabins, all the ship's navigation instruments—even the brass lettering from the vessel's bow and stern.

And then he got an idea.

The idea was to erect in New York a Mauretania hotel, of which the regal suites and the public rooms of the great ship should form the arrangement on the ground floor. Priceless panelling was removed with great care and stored in sheds under controlled heat to keep it from warping. The great dome from the first-class lounge was removed intact.

So there will be an English institution, perpetuating the memory of the great ship, in the heart of New York. The sign outside will be the Mauretania's own lettering. In the foyer will stand her own wheel and compass, binnacle and engine-room gongs. Guests will be able to dine and dance in the very rooms in which they had dined and danced on shipboard. They will be able to rent the very steterooms and luxurious suites in which they had travelled, or gone honeymooning. The hotel will be a ship on shore.

So determined was Mr. Martin to get everything he could of the famous old 'ship that he wrote to all other purchasers offering them 25 per cent advance on the price they had paid. Just as the old "Victory" at Portsmouth keeps alive the memory of Nelson and the old wooden walls of England, the Mauretania hotel will keep alive for trans-Atlantic travellers the memory of the famous old Queen of the Atlantic.

Guernsey, in the Channel Islands, is also to have a fitting souvenir of the great ship. Furniture from two hundred of the staterooms of the Mauretania, and other equipment, has been set aside to furnish two hundred modern suites in an apartment block to be erected at St. Peter Port, Guernsey, for summer visitors. It will be called The Mauretania.

Guernsey is a little off the trade route for most Canadians, but many a traveller from the Dominion will make a point of visiting the Mauretania hotel when it is built in New York, for the sole purpose of recalling memories of the famous record-holder and luxury ship that for so long upheld British fame as the greatest ship afloat.

Draft of a new social credit plan is alleged to have been stolen from the room of an Edmonton hotel occupied by a New York man. The New Yorker should have known it was risky to leave any social credit plan lying about in Alberta, where such things are election campaign platforms.—Toronto Globe.

Chronic Sinus Trouble

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

In yesterday's article, I explained that chronic catarrh is one of the common causes of chronic sinusitis. The principal cause of catarrh and of chronic sinus trouble is a systemic toxemia and when this underlying toxemia is present, the blood stream will carry sufficient toxic material to the sinus mucosa to cause continual irritation and congestion. The fundamental cause is a constitutional cause, or a cause coming from the inside, that is, coming from the blood which serves the nose and its accessory cavities. These inner causes produce the soil in which the disease-producing bacteria can thrive. Once the primary cause capable of producing a suitable soil is established, local invasion by bacteria may follow. In the treatment of chronic sinus infection, the removal of the systemic causes comes first.

Dr. F. McCoy

Neither the nose nor any of its accessory cavities may be considered separate from the rest of the body. In looking for the causes of sinus trouble, we must look for those habits of living which are "not good" and which lower the health of the entire body, in which process, the sinuses share. Such habits of living as eating incorrectly, sluggish elimination, lack of exercise, lack of fresh air, and lack of sufficient sleep lower general resistance and pave the way for chronic sinus disease. We can not get very far away from the fact that if a sinus is to be healthy, it must be nourished by a clean blood stream. The mucosa lining the sinus cavity must feed its cells from the blood carried to it and when that blood is loaded with toxic material which is irritating, all that the mucous membrane may do is to try to protect itself from such irritation by washing out the irritants with an increased secretion of mucus, and by inflammatory changes. Inflammation, of itself, merely means that the membrane is making an attempt at repair—it is trying to get well.

Inflammation is normally followed by repair and the inflammatory process if essentially a repair process which represents the way the body has invented out to attempt to return a part to normal. We may help or hinder the repair process insofar as we remove the irritating materials from the blood stream. With the removal of such materials, the mucosa of the sinus will tend to return to a healthy state.

It is well understood that a patient who develops chronic sinus infection has a lowered resistance. The important question is: what lowered the resistance? Obviously, it was some factor from the list mentioned above. To build up the resistance, some change in living habits is required. The only exceptions are found in those cases of sinus trouble due to direct injury or to mechanical obstruction.

The symptoms of chronic sinusitis are pain, a sense of pressure, discharge, and a sensation of fullness or weight. In chronic cases, the pain may vary between a dull ache, and a sharp, shooting or boring sensation.

The treatment which I have found most effective is that treatment which at the start, removes the irritating materials in the blood which is best accomplished with a short fast, followed by a well-balanced diet. Any measure which will increase the functioning of the vital organs will prove of benefit. Local treatments consisting of ultra violet ray treatment, and of the use of mild antiseptic washes may speed up recovery by helping to reduce the swelling and by improving the tone of the mucous membrane. When these local treatments are used along with an improvement in the patient's daily habits of living, then chronic sinus trouble becomes permanently relieved.

As a means of securing temporary relief from the pain, the application of heat is often of benefit; although, occasionally, the patient will receive greater help from the use of cold. However, of course, temporary relief does not constitute a cure.

Be careful it does not cause you to form an erroneous opinion. Do not in your social activities take anything for granted. It will pay to have clear understandings regarding plans or engagements. Married and engaged couples, as well as those contemplating marriage, must be careful that optimism does not sweep away conservative ideas, especially in matters involving financial obligations.

If a woman and December 11 is your birthday, you are inclined to be very critical. Do not express too freely your personal aversion for this or that, or you may get the reputation of being very difficult to please. Your married life will be largely what you make it.

SIDE GLANCES — By George Clark

"Our Christmas club money? We spent that on our Hallowe'en party."

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1885 the Ottawa Journal was first published by A. S. Woodburn. It was just a journal, with little pretence to being a newspaper. Mr. Woodburn was a good printer, but no news man, and it is no wonder that he lost money from the start. Just as he was considering the advisability of stopping the wastage, relief came through a young man's ambition. P. D. Ross, then representing the Montreal Star in the Press Gallery, thought he would like to settle in Ottawa and made Mr. Woodburn an offer to buy a half interest in the Evening Journal. That half interest merely represented the "good will" because Mr. Woodburn owned the type and the press and the "good will" consisted in a half-interest in a circulation of 1,700, "of which 600 were deadheads." It was a queer combination. Woodburn knew nothing about newspaper publishing, Ross knew nothing about business management, so that when they joined forces on January 1, 1887, it was a leap in the dark.

Then began a desperate struggle to get along. More money was put into the venture by Woodburn. Ross borrowed more money from his friends. The Journal improved, Ross got a good staff together, but it was "tough sledding" all the time, and eventually in 1890, Ross made up his mind to quit. The end had come, money and credit both gone, nothing left but debt, so Ross decided to go west. He, in 1891, accepted a job on a paper at Fort McLeod and prepared to go west, when an incident took place that changed his plan and at the same time the destiny of The Journal. Soon after becoming editor of that paper, Ross was advised to take an interest in Ottawa affairs. He became a director of the Central Fair, and just before he was about to leave Ottawa he was called by Charles Magee, president of the Bank of Ottawa and the Central Fair, to consult about that year's show. When Magee was told that Ross intended to leave he hinted that he would provide the money to buy Woodburn's interest. He endorsed a note and became a director of The Journal Publishing Company, having as associates the present Sir George Perley and N. C. Sparks. Woodburn sold out, Ross carried on and from that time on The Journal progressed until, within a very few years, it became a paying proposition and one of the leading newspapers of Canada.

FILING UP DEBT

At the present time, the manufacturers of military aircraft, warships, arms and equipment of every kind, from gas masks to submarines, are flourishing in the United Kingdom. Armament shares are going up: it is currently anticipated that gigantic national defence loans will be floated soon after the government is returned in the election next Thursday. In the meanwhile, the problem of unemployment is being solved during the election campaign by placing orders with armament firms in preparation for the next war.

It is incredible that this brand of statesmanship will be accepted through many more general elections by the majority of people in countries like the United Kingdom, where the level of political intelligence is supposed to be high. The British people are being reluctantly forced to renew war preparations under the necessity of defending British interests against dangerous competitors for economic power. Without denying the necessity of armament credit both for defence, the taxpayers must eventually rebel against being burdened with new loads of debt in the financing of this expenditure. When the national credit has to be drawn upon for national defence, there is no intelligent reason for first pledging the national credit to private profiteers of financial credit, in other words, for converting the national credit into national debt, before money can be made available to the government to pay the munition manufacturers.

War loans were the most colossal fraud of the last war. They have done more than anything else to reduce nations like Canada to needless poverty. The present economic structure cannot stand up under more loads of debt, and is fastened on the backs of the taxpayers.—Ottawa Citizen.

NEW ZEALAND AND SOCIAL CREDIT

Editor Bulletin:-The reports of the New Zealand elections reaching us from Wellington fail to bring out the real significance of the overturn. They merely show that the National government has been decisively defeated and that Labor has come in with a commanding majority, holding about three-fourths of the seats.

The real significance of the vote is shown in the despatches from London, which state that the Labor party fought the election on a modified Social Credit platform, in which it promises "to assume control of the public credit and to establish a national credit authority whose duty it will be to provide a money service sufficient to give effect to the will of parliament. They promise to lower the purchasing power of the pound sterling to see how Social Credit policy develops in these two portions of the King's Dominions. Speculation will be rife as to which will first come into power, but Alberta certainly led the world in the polls. Will it do so in bringing the policy to fruition?

Things Get Better Proportionately To Opportunity

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

It is a relief to turn from the piffle and dollar humbug emitted by most of our politicians and by all our banking and railway leaders to a clear-cut direct explanation of the only way things can be made better—and made to stay better.

This explanation is given by President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of the General Motors Corporation, as follows:

"I believe the time has been reached when a much broader responsibility must be assumed. We must develop ways and means by which to better correlate the industrial machine and its component parts with the national economy as a whole, in order to more effectively promote human progress and security and to advance civilization.

"In other words, we must move toward a soundly-based and widely-distributed economic well-being. This is the 'theory of plenty' as distinguished from the 'theory of scarcity'."

We have been doing just the opposite in Canada ever since Confederation. Any man who settled in Canadian territory soon found that he had to pay more freight because he did not live on a main city street; and had to take less for his products because they had to be sold in world markets; and had to pay more for his necessities of life and of industry because he was forced to buy in a protected market. The answer has been 70 years of shipping educated young Canadians out of the country.

We can reverse this process, and not be involved in any loss or increased expense. It is a simple matter to find out how much total freight money the railways must earn to get a reasonable profit and build up a fund for replacements and improvements. This amount can be distributed over all the freight traffic of the nation so as to give equality of delivered costs in respect of all necessaries of life and of industry to every community in Canada reached by a railway line.

Equality of delivered costs must be attained before there can be any equality of opportunity; and there can be no certainty of prosperity and of plenty until the financial and transportation facilities of the nation are so adjusted as to create and maintain equality of opportunity. This will require real action; it can never be done by titles, speeches and honorary degrees. Humbug in Canadian public life and finance has had a long and dreadfully expensive reign. The general election and the Quebec election show that our political leaders have been given a chance to bring about action and nothing else; it is a case of politically do or die.

OTTAWA HOLDS RECREATION OF EPOCHAL MEET

men; Mackenzie King's conferees were all of one accord, or nearly so.

The Confederation picture portrayed the consummation by the old statesmen of the pact of Confederation, drawn up to meet the conditions of 1867 and the years immediately ahead. The picture of 1935 was a living scene of the new statesmen come to revise that pact. In 1867 they legislated for 4,635,000 people. In 1935 they legislate for 10,850,000.

To Mackenzie King's right sat Lapointe, to the far left sat Taschereau and the smiling, affable, burly Lapointe whispered to the King than to the grand seigneur of Quebec. To Lapointe descended the mantle of the kindly, benevolent, far- sighted, understanding Laurier; to Taschereau the grand manner of the old regime and Tache.

DUNNING CRUSADER

To King's left sat Dunning, a modern Galahad of Brown, a crusader for better government and better things of life for the mass of the people. Lapointe of French Canada, Dunning of English Canada.

Taschereau's opposite number on the north side, was the bronzed, vivid Hepburn, Premier of the conference, ready to tilt a lance or break a spear for his beliefs.

When work was done for the day there gravitated to Hepburn as like to like, the slim young premier of Nova Scotia, Angus McDonald. A quiet and a slimness, they made a matched team. Hepburn is a hotspur but McDonald has the tempering restraint of his ancestry.

Below Hepburn sat in the stocks, four square figure of Pattullo, the John Bull of the conference, with very definite ideas and definite mannerisms in presenting them. Nearby is Dysart of New Brunswick, a very burly shapeless sort of a chap, grey as to hair and somewhat wordy. On Hepburn's end there is the Manitoba delegation, headed by John Bracken, a premier collegiate. Spare and somewhat ascetic Bracken flashes a rare smile now and then just to indicate his sense of humor. Round his corner is the Prince Edward Island group of two, headed by Premier MacMillan.

NEARBY IS ABERHART

Premier Patterson over by Pattullo's end is a youngish close-cropped young man who unlike a premier as may be imagined, and a far far cry from the statesmen in the picture above his head, with their stolid dignity and dignified stolidity.

Nearby sits Premier Aberhart, a big man in weight, with a shiny dome reminiscent of "Papa" Mohr erwell, the veteran of the Commons but minus Mr. Motherwell's goatee.

This hollow square of ministers is hedged in by a phalanx of press men and experts. The reporters will be present at the one performance only, but the experts will be ever-present. At the last Imperial Conference Premier Baldwin described experts as those "who know more and more about less and less" and "those who know less and less about more and more."

If the figures for the Confederation picture could speak, it would be in rounded periods, with circumlocution and eye-rolling. The 1935 statesmen have a different delivery. Mr. King is agreeable, conciliatory, Mr. Stephens rapped his machine gun paragraphs, Taschereau is sharp, incisive, Pattullo of heavier metal, Bracken has the varsity lecture style. Dysart talks as head of a delegation on matching.

ABERHART FLORESCENT

Patterson reads a prepared brief in a normal tone, but Aberhart is florescent and a trifle ponderous as befits his weight.

They do not talk much, for the real work of the conference will be in committee and they reserve their ammunition.

There are a couple of committees in the afternoon, spending time in reviewing the agenda and exchanging ideas as the chief lines of approach.

In the constitutional committee Lapointe, the eminent authority on matters pertaining to Canada's Magna Charta, has the honors in news-general skirmish up to the main issue; in the finance committee Dunning unphrased has taken his coat off and starts with the first gun.

The mining and taxation committee has Crerar as its head. Crerar in his prior days built up the greatest primary grain handling concern in the world, left it for a duty call into union government and so sacrificed as later events proved, his own material welfare. He crusaded in the field of the progressives in 1921, but they progressed in every direction possible and so passed on. Crerar is still curly hair and a winning smile, the smile that won him victory in 1921 but which is a little tired and worn now.

FIGHTING MAN

The shortest but perhaps the fightingest man in the cabinet heads the marketing and agricultural committee, Gardiner is of the bantam brigade and scraps all out like a bantamweight. He has a job on his hands, for marketing and agriculture are among the major problems of the conference. Most of Western Canada, Dunning of English Canada.

Taschereau's opposite number on the north side, was the bronzed, vivid Hepburn, Premier of the conference, ready to tilt a lance or break a spear for his beliefs.

When work was done for the day there gravitated to Hepburn as like to like, the slim young premier of Nova Scotia, Angus McDonald. A quiet and a slimness, they made a matched team. Hepburn is a hotspur but McDonald has the tempering restraint of his ancestry.

With All My Love

By Mary Raymond.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

After the death of her parents, lovely DANA WESTBROOK comes from abroad to make her home with a grandmother she has never seen. Dana's half-sister, NANCY WALLACE, resents Dana's coming. Dana's grandmother leaves her granddaughter will marry rich RONALD MOORE and is elated when Dana falls in love with her. Dana, meanwhile, has become attracted to DR. SCOTT STANLEY.

Nancy, who masks her love for Ronald behind an antagonistic attitude, seriously watches Dana's interest in Dana. Just as anxiously, PAULA LONG watches Dr. Stanley's attractions to Dana deepen. Ronald becomes jealous of Scott and stays away. Dana wonders what has happened.

Mrs. Cameron asks Scott to stop visiting Dana. Believing Dana sanctions her grandmother's request, Dana accepts his attentions. Dana goes to a dance, wondering if Scott will be there.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI

EVERYONE, apparently, was at the College Club dance. The ballroom floor was crowded. Almost suffocatingly, though it boasted one of the largest dancing areas in town.

It was a highly successful dance. There was good music. Scores of pretty girls. Whispered compliments. More than enough men. An air of delightful festivity.

Scanning the crowd, Dana saw Paula Long several times, but she failed to find Scott among the dancers. Apparently he hadn't come after all. It made all the difference most of the buoyancy left her mood.

"It's hot in here," she said. "Let's go outside for a moment."

Roger, dancing with her, smiled. Sometimes a suggestion to go outside meant the girl was inviting a bit of flirting. Dana, through the weeks he had known her, hadn't seemed that kind of girl. Rather the opposite. But then you never could tell.

They went out on the porch. And suddenly, there was Scott leaning against a post, smoking.

Dana felt Roger's arm. The hand trembled a little. "Let's go back," she whispered. "I feel better now."

"You don't look better," Roger retorted. "You look all in. I'm going to take you home to pick you up. Let's go downstairs and find it."

They were quite near the figure leaning against the post. But the pillar. Dana, her heart throbbing violently, ran up the final flag of courage and recklessness.

"Fine," she agreed, with what she hoped was a careless inflection.

The man against the post moved suddenly, barring their way.

"I think this is our dance, Dana," Scott said, with such cold intensity that Roger was backing off awkwardly before he realized it. "Sorry. Sorry," Roger said. "See you soon."

There was a moment of silence after Roger had gone. Then Dana spoke firmly. "It isn't our dance and you know it."

"When little girls start being silly," Scott answered coolly, "it's necessary to do something about it."

"When did you qualify as my protector?" Dana's voice was trembling. "I can't see that you've got a right to interfere. I'm not a little girl, and I'm able to take care of myself. I don't care for you interference."

"I gathered as much from your grandmother," Scott said. "She made it pretty plain."

"Made what plain?" Dana's amazed eyes met his.

Scott bent slightly, holding her gaze. Then he straightened. "I guess there's a little matter to be cleared up between us," he said. There was a note in his voice that stirred Dana strangely.

"Get your coat. Never mind—you can use mine." Scott linked his arm through hers, traced his hand over her hand.

Dana found herself walking with him down the driveway. They located his car and Scott took off his coat and placed it about Dana's shoulders, against her protests.

"Even if I were not a doctor I'd know what night driving in an outlet like that would do for you," he said.

"I never seem to meet you in a conventional mood," Dana said.

Scott smiled. "I'm not a conventional person."

"So I've discovered. I'm always running away with you, or you're picking me up and running away with me. And then," her voice faltered a little, "you're running away from me."

"Sent away."

"No," Dana objected, "you just stopped without a word. Without even telephoning, or writing, or dropping by to say you would be busy. And what do you mean, anyway, by saying my grandmother—" Her voice broke treacherously. Tears rolled down her cheeks.

Scott guided the car expertly to the side of the drive where a willow conveniently dropped a protecting screen. He took Dana in his arms and they kissed while the world spun round them.

With Dana's soft white cheek pressed against his hard, tanned one, Scott said, "You don't know the old lady was sending me away? She had some idea I couldn't afford you. And I can't, of course. Just the same, we're getting married, aren't we?"

"Of course," Dana said happily. "It will be a hard pull." Scott's voice was acker. "Not much of a life I'm offering you. We're going to be poor as hell, honey."

"What do I care?" said Dana with the recklessness of young love.

"You might regret it," Scott argued. "You might not be able to stand that sort of life."

"All I know is that I can't stand being away from you," Dana interpered. "I want to be with you always, Scott. I don't care how poor we are."

There was only one way to answer that.

After a while Scott said, "We could be married tonight as well as any other time. Things won't be any different as far as money is concerned for a long while."

"I don't want to wait, anyway." "It would be better not to blow beneath the belt to carry you off tonight," Scott mused. "I guess you'd better go back to your grandmother and hear all the horrible things she'll tell you about me. Then we can be married tomorrow. Maybe that's taking a risk, but I've got to have you with your eyes open."

"Nothing that anyone could say would make a any difference," Dana's voice was twin pleading.

They went back to the dance then. Dana felt as though she were floating over the floor. Scott cut in now and then and they danced almost without words, unaware of their surroundings, unaware of anything except their own ecstatic happiness.

And then, at last, it was time to go home. Dana said good night to Roger, smiling mysteriously. "I'll hear only bliss. Tomorrow by this time she'll be Mrs. Scott Stanley!

Lying awake in the darkness, Dana's was lost in her soaring thoughts. Drifting at last into a deep sleep, she was awakened by a scented breeze from the garden and the sun warm against her face. Outside there was the insistent clamor of birds.

Then she remembered!

It was all exactly as it should be on one's wedding morning. Dana was wide-awake now, deliciously wide-awake. She dressed quickly and went downstairs. Sarah told her someone had called and left a number. Dana did not recognize the number, but she dialed it. It heard Scott's voice, groaning: "It's going to and here—you are just out of bed! What sort of wife have I picked out, anyway?"

"I promise to make it up in lots of other ways," Dana said. "What are you doing?"

"Preparing to dash over to see you. Have you told the old lady?"

"No. I haven't had time. I'm just ready to do it now."

"You'll probably need reinforcements."

"Not at all," Dana said rose by Dana said "Goodby," huskily. The phone clicked, shutting off Scott's reassuring voice. Dana faced her grandmother.

"What did you mean by reinforcements?" Mrs. Cameron demanded. "I never heard such silly chatter. And what do you mean by calling some young man Darling over the telephone?"

Mrs. Cameron's voice was stirred by excitement and anxiety.

The telephone happened to be the only place at the time," Dana said slowly.

"Such impudence."

Dana still stood by the telephone. A slight figure, trembling a little, preparing to face the storm she was about to invoke.

"I'm going to be married today, Grandmother," Dana said simply. "To Scott Stanley."

Mrs. Frank Craig Dies At Lougheed

LOUGHEED, Dec. 10—Mrs. Frank Craig, one of the pioneers of the Lougheed district, passed away Nov. 30 after a lingering illness. Sarah Cameron, born in Barrie, Ontario in 1877, married Frank Craig in 1901 and came with her husband to Alberta in 1907. They homesteaded in the Delahaf district, south of Lougheed and have resided there ever since. She leaves her husband and three sons.

The Debunker

When circus elephants take pretty girls and toss them into the air with their trunks, many persons get the impression that the animal's chief defense is his trunk. The truth is that they never use their trunks in attack on their enemies. They use their tusks, chiefly and their trunks their tusks with their feet. Their trunks are too long, out of all scale. An elephant's trunk is its only means of living by it all food is secured, all water conveyed to its mouth, all breathing done and all smelling for its enemies carried on. Its trunk is its very life, and to risk damaging it would be to risk his death.

Lure Of Far Lands Is Felt In Travelogue

Idle hours slipping away like so many grains of sand falling through listless fingers, heady, exotic perfumes, the fragile perfect beauty of rare blossoms—all the magic lure of the tropics was vividly and fascinatingly revealed by Miss Hilda Hesson of Winnipeg, world wide traveller and journalist, who gave a charming illustrated lecture in Knox United Church on Monday evening. The Women's Association of the church sponsored the lecture which was well attended.

Breaking the last colored streamer which binds it to the dock, the great ship steams out of New York harbor and, travelogue style, Miss Hesson takes her audience on board with her and through every delightful intimate stage of a thrilling "Round the Cape to Rio" cruise.

Pausing just long enough at Madeira to see the manufacture of the famous wine of the island where the natives use the most primitive of grape presses—their own feet—the boat passes on to Gibralter, the ancient fortress of the Mediterranean. Through its busy, incredibly narrow streets, people of all creeds, classes and religions rub shoulders and a brief glimpse into the great galleries inside the rock show the military battlements to be essentially the same as in the days of Waterloo.

CITY OF FLOWERS

Barcelona, the city of flowers, contains two particularly interesting cathedrals—not a single straight line has been used in the designing of them and unique pattern of flowers and faces wrought in precious stones, rocks and even in coal, seem ready to melt into the strangely beautiful colored marble of their walls. The wind is said to whistle and moan most eerily through the lacy stone construction of their spires.

Leaving picturesque Monte Carlo, where every street leads to the gilt and white Casino, Naples, the intriguing ruins of Pompeii and Athens, and the Holy Land, where scenes are still like pages from the Bible, Cairo, the heart of Egypt, is reached.

LIFE ALONG THE NILE

Here, seated on the broad terrace of Shepherd's hotel, which shows in its luxurious appointments in red and gold and in its pillars carved with lotus flowers, a delightful mixture of Arab and Turkish influence, the traveller sees the colorful panorama of "life by the irrigation ditches." Along these broad trenches through which the waters of the Blue Nile are threaded through the land, the natives may be seen doing their laundry, bathing or kneeling in worship. Gaily bedecked camel trains pass by. Bright garbed dragomen are eager to act as guides to the pyramids and the Ephinx, along the entrancing shaded streets where natives call their colorful wares from little shops or hand carts.

Through Mombasa, where even the sunny-faced black "traffic cops" are provided with little awnings to protect them from the intense glaring heat, sail on to the island of Zanzibar, the land of cloves. As in a vivid etching, the snowy buildings with their ebony shadows stand in relief against a cloudless sky.

In Durban, the lazy, singing coolies, who work in unconscious rhythm, and the strange rickshaw boys with their fantastic be-feathered headdresses and painted legs are seen. Splendid is the view across the "Valley of a Thousand Hills."

At the very point of Africa is Capetown, a radiant city crouching at the foot of Table Mountain, topped by its perpetual white cloud table cloth. Pretoria falls, called by the the natives "the smoke that thunders." Johannesburg and Kimberley, the gold and diamond cities that know nothing of depression, are at last left behind, and the traveller comes to Rio De Janiero, the most beautiful city of the world, which, stretched like a silver ribbon along a glassy, palm-fringed harbor, about the feet of Sugar Loaf Mountain.

Rev. George A. Macdonald, the chairman, introduced the speaker, and during the evening, Mrs. Adam Smith entertained with delightful vocal solos. Mr. W. M. Mawer was the accompanist.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Women, reputed native individualists, can be trained to work together in an orchestra so the trumpeter won't out-toot the clarinetist—but it takes time. That's on authority of Ebba Sundstrum, conducter of the Chicago women's symphony orchestra, described as the only well-established professional symphony orchestra in the world consisting entirely of women. Women musicians, in Miss Sundstrum's opinion, are not as temperamental as men, but: "women are inclined to view things from a personal angle, and it takes time and patience to instill the idea that the orchestra as a whole is the thing."

MAN CAN NOW TALK WITH GOD

MOSCOW, IDAHO.—"A new and revolutionary religious teaching based entirely on the misunderstood sayings of the Galilean Carpenter, and designed to show how we may find, understand and use the same identical power which Jesus used in performing His so-called Miracles," is attracting world wide attention to its founder, Dr. Frank B. Robinson, noted teacher, author and lecturer.

"Psychiana," this new psychological religion, believes and teaches that it is today possible for every normal human being, understanding spiritual law as Christ understood it, "to duplicate every work that the Carpenter of Galilee ever did"—it believes and teaches that when He said, "the things that I do shall ye do also," He meant what He said and meant it literally to all mankind, through all the ages.

Dr. Robinson has prepared a 6000 word treatise on "Psychiana," in which he tells about his long search for the Truth, how he finally came to the full realization of an Unseen Power or force "so dynamic in itself that all other powers and forces fade into insignificance beside it"—how he learned to commune directly with the Living God, using this mighty, never-failing power to demonstrate health, happiness and financial success, and how any normal being may find and use it as Jesus did. He is now offering this treatise free to every reader of this paper who writes him.

If you want to read this "highly interesting, revolutionary and fascinating story of the discovery of a great Truth," just send your name and address to Dr. Frank B. Robinson, 12-12th Street, Moscow, Idaho. It will be sent free and postpaid without cost or obligation. Write the Doctor today.—Copyright 1935, Dr. Frank B. Robinson.—Advertisement.

Santa Claus To Visit Babies In The Creche

Colorful Christmas stockings, trinkets, multi-color lights and tinsel will provide the proper Yuletide atmosphere at the delightful annual Christmas tree party arranged by members of the Edmonton Creche Board for the little children in the Creche. Members are busy with plans for the affair and at their monthly meeting in the Macdonald hotel on Monday afternoon the auxiliaries to the organization all expressed an eagerness to contribute their share to the merriment.

Reports from the various committees indicated an unusually active period in the life of the creche for the past month, during which over seventy children, ranging from the ages of one month to six years have been cared for, and as many as twenty-three have attended on one day.

Mrs. William J. Dick occupied the chair during the business discussion in the absence of Lady Rodney, president. The January meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Dick on the second Monday in the month, and the annual meeting will take place in February.

WELL-KNOWN GRADUATES OF VARSITY WED

RED DEER Dec. 10.—Of particular interest in University circles and among graduates is the wedding of Norma Bernice Baker, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Baker of Red Deer, and John Lyle Eaglesham, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. Eaglesham of Cayley, Alberta, which took place at the family residence of the bride in Red Deer on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. Both the bride and bridegroom completed their education for academic degrees at the University of Alberta.

Rev. White Smith of Red Deer read the marriage service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white crepe romaine and lace, designed on long slender lines. Her tulle veil, held in place by a coronet, fell gracefully to the floor. She carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses.

Miss Doris Baker, sister of the bride, was her only attendant and wore a gown of pansy blue velvet. She carried a sheaf of bronze chrysanthemums.

Mr. Hugh Eaglesham, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a buffet supper was served to about 30 guests. Mrs. Baker, mother of the bride, very charming in a gown of brown metallaise crepe with a corsage of yellow tea roses, received the guests. Mrs. N. Eaglesham, mother of the bridegroom, attired in pansy crepe with a corsage of tea roses, also received.

A three-tiered wedding cake centred the tea table, which was decorated with pink and white streamers and bronze chrysanthemums, which were also used for decoration throughout the rooms.

The bride chose a brown crepe suit with matching accessories for their motor trip to Calgary.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Croft and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Pound of Edmonton.

BATIK EXHIBIT DISPLAYS MANY FINE PIECES

"Alice in Wonderland" found herself conversing with the caterpillar, hookah in mouth, upon a piece of rich velvet, which was no doubt not in the least surprising to Alice, at the exhibit of batik arranged by the Edmonton branch, Canadian Handicraft Guild, and held in the Macdonald hotel on Saturday afternoon. Mary's little lamb cavorted, nicely blocked, upon linen, and made a charming design for hangings, here were Eskimos and giraffes conventionalized into a design, for if east and west can never meet, it doesn't mean that north and south must obey the same adage. These were some of the pieces from the Vancouver School of Art, displayed at the exhibit.

"Indian Legend of Autumn Leaves," by Anora Brown of Macleod, was shown, giving interested visitors an opportunity to see this piece of exquisite art displayed on the S.S. Ascania by the National Guild last season. The drab brown tones of the trees, are carried ou in the border of the hanging. There are depicted the Indian mother and little brown children, birds and small animals of the forest, while behind them is a faint background of silver birch trunks and the fading of summer green. Seeing this beautiful story-picture, one can not but appreciate what scope the art has.

"Chinese Lantern Maker," by Mrs. Nettie Bryant of Calgary was the hanging which commanded all eyes as one after another the many visitors stepped into the exhibition room. The intent face of the artist shows his concentration on the work of designing another lantern to add to the many about the dimly lighted shop. His smock is blue, and the little Chinese child, watching fascinated, wears Oriental pyjamas and coat. The subject holds interest, and the coloring is beautiful, light brought into the picture in the gay tints of the lanterns.

Then there is a fairy story of the magic horse. Never was such a wonderful horse as that ridden by the prince to rescue the princess from the high tower. It gallops through the air, neck arched, mane flying, while its rider lifts his arms to the awaiting beauty of the tower. The piece was submitted by Mrs. Van Delinder of Windover Studios.

In all, the exhibit was one of the most beautiful and most charmingly displayed of any that the Guild has so far sponsored.

Also of special interest was the showing of pictures, portraits and drawings by Edmonton artists, arranged by Mrs. C. Mortimer. A portrait of Mrs. Edward Underwood, Guild president, by Mrs. Mortimer, was greatly admired.

Exhibits were collected from Vancouver, and from the Institute of Technology and Arts in Calgary, as well as from a number of individual workers.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS GIVEN AT MEETING

NAMAO, Dec. 10—Members of the Namao U.F.W.A. were entertained at the home of Mrs. M. Lowe for their annual meeting recently when their president was unanimously re-elected to office. To mark their appreciation of her services in the organization for the past two years members presented to their leader a beautiful scarf.

The secretary, the directors, Mrs. H. Spheers and Mrs. S. Samis, the librarian, Mrs. M. Lowe and the press correspondent, Mrs. E. Auten were also re-elected and other officers are Mrs. H. Latimer, flower convener and Mrs. J. McLay, who is in charge of the question box.

During the meeting material was gathered for a historical review of the life of the pioneers of the settlement which the association plans to compile in book form by Christmas.

An interesting reading given by Mrs. H. Spheers and the exchange of Christmas gifts added to the pleasure of the evening. Money was voted to provide Christmas cheer for children in needy families and the roll call was answered by Christmas receipts. Later in the evening refreshments were served. The next meeting, to which members plan to invite their husbands, is to be held at the home of Mrs. S. Samis on the evening of Wednesday, January eighth.

Don't Expect To Live At Millionaire Rate

The average girl goes into marriage without having learned anything about the job she is assuming. She goes on the assumption that there is some sort of conjure in the wedding ceremony that will turn a pampered society girl or a business girl, who has not even a speaking acquaintance with a gas range, into a first-class cook. And when the charm doesn't work she sits down and howls, and her husband says things to his lovey-dovey that make her threaten to put on her hat and go back to mamma. That is her first mistake.

Dorothy Dix

The honeymoon ends and the scrapping begins when the bridegroom begins criticizing the bride's biscuit and wanting to know if the beverage he is supposed to drink is coffee or dish water. Men are trained to efficiency and when one finds that he has married a bungler who doesn't know the first rudiments of her trade, who poisons him with bad cooking and throws half his salary in the garbage can, he feels that he has been stung, and he begins to regret his bargain. Nine-tenths of the disillusion of marriage would be saved if girls would learn how to cook before marriage instead of after, for by the time they have served their apprentice-ships on their husbands they have usually killed them, or else turned them into sour dyspeptics.

The next mistake young wives make is in expecting their husbands to treat them as their mothers did. Ever since Mamie was born mother has spent her life spoiling her and making her selfish and unfitting her for marriage. Mother has hoodwinked to her and been her humble slave. Mother has made calluses on her hands so that Mamie's might be soft and manicured. Mother has gone shabby that Mamie might have the latest Paris confections. And when Mamie marries and finds that her husband expects her to give and take and pull her weight in the boat she simply can't stand it.

When you read of a young woman who has got a divorce from her husband because of his cruelty, it is nearly always because he didn't treat her as her mother treated her.

Another mistake that young wives make is in being too sentimental and womanish, demanding too much love-making from their husbands. They simply can't kiss courtship good-by and fold it away with their wedding veils. They make themselves miserable and get peevish and fretful and disgruntled because the tired business men, who have slaved all day to make them comfortable and give them good homes and cars, do not come home and make impassioned love like a cinema hero. It would save a lot of tears from neglected wives if women had gumption enough to realize that they have no reason to doubt their husband's affections as long as they bring home the bacon and stay there to eat it.

The next mistake young wives make is in not realizing that, while it is a man's prerogative to do his love-making before marriage, it is up to the woman to do it after marriage. The very wives who complain that their husbands are cold and take them for granted and never pay them a compliment are the ones who never give their husbands a kiss that isn't as flabby as a cold pancake, and who never tell their husbands how handsome and clever and wonderful they are and how they bless Heaven every day for having married to them. Heart hunger isn't an exclusively feminine complaint. When it is, too, the wife who takes the trouble to continually court her husband never has to make way for the "other woman."

The next mistake young wives make is in turning all mother and no wife when the first baby arrives. Up to the time of Junior's arrival the husband has been the little tin god in the home. After Junior's advent he is less than the dust on the floor. The young mother is so absorbed in babykins that she is actually glad to get her husband out of the house so she can indulge herself in an orgy of child-worship. The real correspondent in thousands of divorce cases is the first child. For it is when mother is doting on baby's hand that father first starts out to hunt some lady to hold his.

And perhaps the greatest mistake of all that young wives make is in taking their husbands too seriously. They make mountains out of molehills and tragedies out of things they should laugh off. They mourn their husbands as lost when they are merely mislaid. They think their husbands are in love with every woman they admire, and that all of their little weaknesses are unforgivable crimes.

And by the time they found out that men are the impulsive sex that does things on the spur of the moment and without any deep meaning behind it, and that most of their sidestepping is nothing but the little boy urge, they never get over, to play hookey, and that they will come back to home and mother if she will just wait, it is too late to do anything about it.

What a pity that brides can't know all about managing husbands that their mothers know. It would save them from making so many mistakes.

DOROTHY DIX.

What's What

Question—Would it be all right to have a debut for our daughter (a college senior) during the Christmas holidays? After her graduation next June my husband and I expect to spend a year or two in Austria, where Mary will study medicine. That's why I want to introduce her at home this year, if possible. What form of invitation should be used for an afternoon affair with tea?

MOTHER.

Answer—When a tea is given to introduce a young daughter, the debutante's name appears below that of her mother. If both have namesplates at the stationery, impressions may be made inexpensively and promptly. If both names must be engraved the plate may be used again for either by instructing the engraver to cover one of the names when he is printing a new set of cards. At this season, when engravers are rushed with Christmas and New Year orders, the mother may use one of the blank invitation forms, filling in names and date. Or she may write her daughter's name below her own on her visiting card with the abbreviated date and hour written in the lower left corner, this way:

Mon., Dec. 30
2 to 5 P.M.

J. X.—A breakfast, luncheon or tea napkin may be opened to its full size, but a large dinner napkin is opened only to a lengthwise fold, or about one-third of its size. A guest does not refold a napkin after dinner; it is left on the table "as is."

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL COCHRANE Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

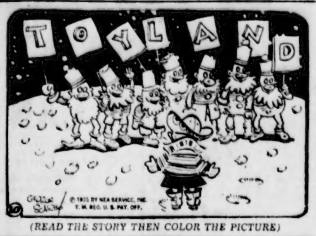

Fair Goldy shouted, "Look at that! The swan has on a funny hat. I s'pose he wants to keep his head warm while he flies along.

"It's really very cold up here. To Toyland, now, we must be near. The swan has made good time. I guess he must be pretty strong."

"If the sled should tip, I know you'd take a flop.

"Then we would be with us no more, 'cause on and on we're going to soar. If you do something foolish, don't expect that we will stop."

The spot one of the Tinies spied was land, all night and Copy cried, "Our swan is settling down now. This is where our fine trip ends."

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Once more big snowflakes filled the air and Copy shouted, "This is rare. Imagine being on a sled ride, high above the ground!"

Another happy Tiny said, "We must be on a magic sled. It's simply reeling on the air, yet I feel safe and sound."

They traveled for an hour or so and then somebody shouted, "Oh, I think I see a cloud ahead, or maybe it is land.

"We're heading that way very fast. Perhaps, though, we will go right past. I'll bet that I could tell the place much better, if I'd stand."

"For goodness sakes, lad, keep your seat. You think of things quite indiscreet," snapped Windy.

As soon as they were on the ground, all of the Tinies looked around. Then Scouty loudly shouted, "I see seven little friends.

"They're elves, and they are smiling. Gee, I guess we're welcome as can be. I have a bunch that fun's in store. I'm glad that we're on hand."

The elves then raised signs in the air and Duney cried, "Well, just look there! The letters on those seven little signs spell out 'TOYLAND!'"

(The Tinies get acquainted with the elves in the next story).

Meet Christmas Rush With Planned Menus

By MARY E. DAGUE

Most of us are beginning to think of ways to meet the Christmas rush. The boys and girls home from school and somebody dropping in every minute or two for impromptu meals, mother need to be prepared to make sandwiches, serve a salad and set the dessert in twinkling of an eye. It's a good idea to sit down with a pencil and paper and work out definite plan with menus for various occasions—buffet suppers, after-theatre snacks, and mid-morning breakfasts and late afternoon teas.

Sister Mary

Our great-grandmothers were smart about emergencies. They filled their great brick ovens with mince pies on a baking day early in December and then put the boxed pies in the cold room to freeze until needed. Then a pie was brought out, reheated and found to be even better than a freshly-baked one. You can store a pie or two in the refrigerator. Warm mince and fruit pies are splendid for buffet suppers and little snacks.

Baked ham is another aid to the frantic hostess. It's good sliced cold, reheated in a tart sauce in the chafing dish or used in salads and sandwiches.

If you want a hot dish, nothing can surpass oysters. Tempting and simple salad and with your hot mince or fruit pies you have a menu different enough from traditional Christmas food to keep family and guests from being bored.

Individual servings are nice for buffet meals. Here's one menu. Cranberry juice cocktail, canapes, oysters in ramkins, stuffed avocado salad, apple-mince pies, coffee.

CHILL CRANBERRY JUICE

Use bottled cranberry juice and keep in the refrigerator until ready to serve.

The canapes will have to be made last, but with all the packaged wafers and canned and bottled hors d'oeuvres on grocers' shelves, they're no trouble at all.

The oyster ramkins can be made ready, all but the eggs, early in the day. When you need them, add beaten eggs, turn into paper baking cups and bake.

Prepare the fruits early and chill for several hours.

OYSTER RAMIKINS

One quart small oysters, 1 cup diced celery, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 teaspoon minced onion or cup water, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1 cup cracker crumbs, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, salt and pepper.

Drain oysters and chop. Cook celery and onion in water until celery is soft. Sprinkle oysters with lemon juice and add to cooked celery. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Add parsley, salt and pepper and bring to the boiling point. Add celery and oysters and remove from heat. Stir in well beaten egg and cracker crumbs. Turn into buttered ramikins, cover with coarse buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) until crumbs are brown.

APPLE-MINCE PIES

One package mince meat, 1¼ cups water, 2 cups sweetened apple sauce, pie crust.

Choose a rich, juicy apple such as Macintosh or Northern Spy for the sauce. Break mince meat into pieces. Add water and stir until the lumps are thoroughly broken. Bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly, and boil a minute. Cool. Line individual pie pans with pastry, fill almost full with mince meat and spread apple sauce over the top in an even layer. Cover with top crust and bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees F.)

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Pineapple juice, cereal, cream, crisp broiled bacon, cinnamon rolls, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Spanish rice, rye bread, orange and raisin salad, prune whip, milk, tea.

DINNER: Hot beef loaf, horseradish sauce, scalloped potatoes, baked squash, endive with French dressing, cottage pudding, milk, coffee.

What To Do

Since our recent marriage my husband and I have been invited to a number of dinners and parties given for us, but as we live in a small apartment and cannot afford to give formal dinners in return just how can we show our appreciation?

MRS. J. M. B.

Answer—Many newly married persons find themselves in just the same predicament and have the erroneous idea that hospitality must be returned in identical form. Not at all. If your apartment is small a buffet-supper would be a charming way to entertain your friends. Seating arrangements need not be considered, nor is it essential that the plates or goblets or even silverware match, though everything should be arranged very neatly and exactly. The matter of service, too, is simplified, guests being expected to help themselves as they pass around the table. But don't make the mistake of overcrowding. You may find that two buffet suppers will be better than one.

Clipping Eyelashes May Prove Harmful

By GLADYS GLAD

Among certain Brazilian tribes, I am told eyelashes are considered anything but desirable features. In that part of the globe, it seems, the Brazilian belles think it a mark of beauty to have no eyelashes at all. They, therefore, pluck their lashes out by the roots. And when they flirt with a local beau, they give him a very naked wink.

That certainly is different from our ideas. Long, fringing lashes are highly admired in Europe and America. Even back in the Victorian age women painted pretty lashes. And many of them had the habit of cutting their lashes, in the hope that this would promote their growth.

Nowadays you don't very often hear of girls clipping their lashes, but there still are some who do. And let me tell you that it's a mighty dangerous and quite futile practice. It is easy to understand why, too. In the first place, the lashes grow from sheir follicles in the eyelids, and not from their tips. Clipping the tips in no wise stimulates the hair follicles, and consequently does not promote the growth of the lashes. Only by nourishing and treating the hair follicles themselves can the growth of the lashes be influenced.

As to the danger involved in clipping the lashes, it is ever-present. For if any of the minute bits of hair that are clipped off become lodged in the eyes, serious eye infections may result. If you desire to promote the length and thickness of your lashes, use a bit of plain petrolatum or odorless castor oil on them nightly. Or employ one of the stimulating, nourishing eye lash growers. But do not clip the tips of your lashes in order to make them grow longer and thicker.

Curling the eyelashes is another important step in their beautification. You can train your lashes to curl back nicely if you have patience. When applying the chosen lubricant to your lashes each night, use a small brush. Then brush the lashes upward and back. Brush them in this manner in the morning, too, and as often as you can. Eventually, they should become trained to curl back naturally. If you desire immediate results, you can use one of the many eyelash curlers. These curlers, if used carefully, curl the lashes most attractively without proving in any way harmful.

GLADYS GLAD.

EDITOR'S NOTE: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlet on "The New Figure" write, on a post card, your name and address, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

MRS. D. HAY IS PRESIDENT OF CURLING CLUB

LACOMBE, Dec. 10.—Mrs. David Hay was elected president of the Lacombe Curling Club at the annual organization meeting held recently in the home of Mrs. N. E. Carruthers. Twelve women have signified their intention to curl during the winter and a very successful season is anticipated. Other members of the executive are Mrs. George Doherty, honorary president; Miss Lila Harrington, vice-president; Miss Opal Danner, treasurer, and Mrs. W. Mills, convener of the draw committee.

Minute Make-Ups

The new beauty creams are almost all improvements over ancient formulae. Even the gold and wine lotion used by the Greeks is modernized in a cream with a gold base. The gold is believed to have a natural electrical attraction for dirt and dry skin and leaves the pores clean as a whistle.

How to Keep Colds
UNDER better CONTROL

Catching a Cold?.. Vicks Va-tro-nol helps Prevent many Colds

At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. It stimulates Nature's own functions—in the nose—to help prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in their early stages. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps avoid many colds.

Caught a Cold?.. Vicks VapoRub helps End a Cold Sooner

If a cold has developed, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat and chest at bedtime. VapoRub acts direct—two ways at once: (1) by stimulation through the skin like a poultice or plaster; (2) by inhalation of its medicated vapors direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, eases irritation, helps break congestion.

Follow Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds

A helpful guide to fewer colds and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Staff; tested in extensive clinics by practicing physicians—further proved in everyday home use by millions. The Plan is fully explained in each Vicks package.

VICKS PLAN — CONTROL OF COLDS

Your Children —

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The sweetness of children, little ones particularly, almost makes my heart ache. They possess a certain realism that is later lost sight of in the turbulence of life. I took a small fellow on my knee and asked him if there was anything he would like for Santa Claus to bring him. A silly question, I know I was being stupid and a bore. But he clasped his little hands gravely and nodded. "Yes, a scooter and a car." Then he added: "That's enough." Now as he is my grandson, this leap of faith said, "Yes, it is enough, dear. But I thought you would have a whole barrel of things to ask for."

O. R. Barton

"Oh, I want more things, but that's enough," he smiled.

"Well, let's hear what is in the barrel," I said.

"What did you say?"

THE REST OF THE LIST

"Tell Olive what the other things are you were thinking about. I tried to get him to call me 'Granny' from the first. But he chose the name himself. He calls his mother 'Mother' but his father, who used to be Daddy Dick is now plain Dick. 'Granny' is my preference. I like it much better than Grandma. But we are talking about Christmas and really serious things now, "I want another sled that you can turn. And a big wheel-barrow and a shovel, and a big yellow car like the one Skipper Jed that got broke. And a two-wheeled bicycle, I—friend.

"How about new blocks?" Hidden depths are always coming to the surface in my little grandson. And drably colorless alas sketchy from long.

"I have blocks," he nodded gravely.

"If Santa Claus brings you nice new bright ones what kind would you like?"

He was ready. "I need lots to make a garage. I can't make doors any more. The long ones got lost."

"What about Deedie," I asked. "What does she want?"

"I guess she wants my toys."

"Then what do you think Santa should bring her?"

HOW DESIRES ARE BORN

"If I get a scooter and a car she'll want a scooter and a car. But she can't ride a scooter. Maybe she'll better get one anyway," he considered. "Deedie wants a scooter and a car. Yes, that's enough."

"What do you think Mary wants?"

Mary wants everything. She pulls my hair," he laughed.

"Let's tell Santa Claus to bring her a lot of hair to pull," I said.

He laughed hard. "Mother, Olive says for Santa Claus to bring Mary the baby some hair to pull. Isn't that funny?"

I held him close. But when he said, "Olive, what do you want Santa Claus to bring you?" I filled up and wept. This four-year-old little baby. He is not perfect. He has a temper and slumps around like a top sergeant at times. I like it much better than Grandma. But we are talking about Christmas and really serious things now, "I want another sled that you can turn. And a big wheel-barrow and a shovel, and a big yellow car like the one Skipper Jed that got broke. And a two-wheeled bicycle, I—friend.

Wrote Letter To Stalin

EAST'S ONLY CONNECTION WITH SOVIET

Minister Makes Explanation of His Connection At Inquiry

REGINA, Dec. 10.—Rev. S. B. East's only connection with the Soviet Union was with the Dominion Riot Inquiry Monday was that he had written a letter to Joseph Stalin.

MAKES EXPLANATION

Mr. East made an explanation of his position in regard to Russia and the Communist party Monday afternoon when he returned to the witness stand to clear up details of an invitation he had received to visit Russia. Monday morning B. D. Hogarth, K.C. counsel for the federal government, and the R.C.M.P. questioned Mr. East closely on this point and Mr. East promised to return with a telegraphed invitation he had received. He knew nothing about the organization that had invited him but said the invitation came from Toronto through A. E. Smith. He asked the commissioners not to reveal the details of a letter he had received regarding the invitation as publication would injure the prospects of the mission which he had been invited to join.

He described the mission to Russia briefly as "to investigate political prisons and camps there."

SENT LETTER NOV. 22

He sent a letter to Stalin on Nov. 22 asking that a large area be set aside in Russia, "in which the Christian religion would be free of restrictions." This had been done for the Jews, he said. He also suggested to Stalin that the cross be superimposed on the hammer and sickle symbol. He told the Russian leader that would aid in giving more quickly Russia's difficulties.

Regarding his connection with the Communist party in Canada, he said his position was the church should associate with the "cause that seeks the Kingdom of God though it is called by another name." He worked for "the spirit of brotherhood." There was a selflessness in the Communist movement that "reminds men only of the "Man of Nazareth."

INTIMATE GLIMPSES AND INSIDE STUFF ON THE MOVIE COLONY

By DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD is experimenting again—this time with original screen operas.

And if the experiment is successful, film producers can stop acquiring fresh crops of gray hair over the grand opera stars to whom they are paying fabulous salaries.

Frankly, these famous warblers have presented quite a problem to their studio bosses. Although they are in great demand right now, producers have been burning considerable midnight oil trying to figure out what to do with the songsters after the supply of popular operatic arias is exhausted. And that is not far off.

A short time ago it was predicted that the solution to this problem would be found in original operas written especially for the screen. Preparations now are being rushed to try such attack with "Give Us This Night," which will go before the cameras soon, with Gladys Swarthout and Jan Kiepura in the top spots.

Erich Wolfgang Korngold, noted European composer, is in Hollywood collaborating with Oscar Hammerstein II on operatic numbers for this picture. Korngold is writing the music, Hammerstein the words.

Two of the completed compositions, "Softly Through the Heart of Night" and "Was There Ever a Voice," both reflecting the Italian background of the picture, show every promise of smash hits.

But whether the public will respond as enthusiastically to new numbers as it has to familiar arias is something nobody can fortell. If it does, the screen lives; if noted operatic stars will be short indeed. If it does, the singers should enjoy movie popularity as long as men can be found to compose operatic numbers for them.

PLAYING SAFE

Just in case you've ever lost any sleep wondering why Groucho Marx paints a mustache on his upper lip instead of growing a real one, here's the story. He used to have a real one until he burned part of it off one night when he missed his aim while attempting to light a cigar. Since then he has refused to use his razor sparingly.

STRAND STAGE SHOW PLEASES LARGE HOUSE

"Stratosphere Revue" High Class Vaudeville Entertainment

"Stratosphere Revue" last stage attraction to be seen at the Strand theatre until some time after the new year, wound up in grand style the entertainment that has attracted capacity crowds since early fall.

There is little or no connection between the title and the attractions this week, unless the "Stratosphere" is taken to mean "the tops" in entertainment.

GETS TOP BILLING

Getting top billing is George Lovett and his "Concentration" act assisted by the masked band, Elsa and Georgia Templeton, the "Girl with the X-ray Mind."

Presented smoothly, the act is baffling. Patrons of the theatre are asked to think of a tune—any tune—and the band will play it.

Silent requests by members of the audience ranged all the way from symphony to the hottest rag-time; from the hoariest of old time music up to the newest smash-hits, "Red Sails in the Sunset" and "Thanks a Million."

Gibson and Lee Give out bumps and muscular gyrations that are the last word in hoo hooving and other modernistic dances, staged by Ratcliffe.

Sidney Del Rees, a platinum so dazzling as to make Jean Harlow look like a dusky Harlem belle sings three popular numbers.

TOP-NOTCH JUGGLER

A top-notcher is Frank Santrey, the "Joyful Juggler" who amazes by heaving everything around on the stage except the band.

Tyler and St. Clair, outstanding marimba-pianists carry on a conversation, hammering out questions and answers in melody. A cleverly thought-out turn, their act gets a lot of laughs.

Charlie Dermer, singing impersonator has the best of the many imitations of the banjo-eyed Eddie Cantor that has been seen on the Strand stage in recent weeks. Dermer is Eddie to a "T" while sing'ng "Now I'm Apt to Fall in Love."

Winnie Mack, acrobatic dancer with more twists than a tortured pretzel is a crowd pleaser and rounds out the near-perfect bill.

On the screen is James Dunn in "Bad Boy."

MAYOR RECEIVES RIGHT TO VOTE ON COMMITTEES

Right to vote on committees was won at Monday night's city council meeting by Mayor Jos. A. Clarke when he was given a vote on committees of the aldermanic board.

In past years the mayor has been an ex-officio member of the various committees, but has been denied the privilege of voting on questions considered.

Shortly after taking office in 1934 Mayor Clarke proposed that he be granted this power. His battle was won Monday when aldermen passed a bylaw giving him voting rights.

COUNCIL WANTS FULL REPORT ON JOBLESS CASES

Wanting a full report on relief cases dealt with by the special relief committee, city council Monday night decided to adopt recommendations of the committee pending a detailed statement on the disposition of the various cases.

The committee, composed of Aldermen Margaret Crang, chairman, E. East and W. Clevely, was appointed by council to consider complaints by unemployed and also to probe rules and regulations of the relief department. Monday night the committee brought down a report recommending emergency relief for certain of the cases.

Aldermen took the view that they should not be called upon to act in a "yes-man" capacity to the committee by adopting recommendations without knowing the history of the cases in question. Accordingly, a full report on each family or person concerned was asked for.

A soldiers' "bonus" march on the seat of government was held in June, 1921. Philadelphia was at that time the home of Congress.

COUNCIL SUPPORTS APPOINTMENT THIRD COMMISSIONER

Mayor Clarke Wins Another Victory In 'New Deal' Program

Council's Nominating Committee Instructed to Consider Possible Choices for the Post and Bring in Recommendation.

Winning another victory in his "new deal" program for 1936, Mayor Jos. A. Clarke Monday night received the support of a majority of city council for his proposal to appoint a third commissioner to form a commission board of three. Council's nominating committee was instructed to consider possible choices for the post and recommend a person for the position, along with a detailed report of all applications dealt with.

Those voting for the appointment of the third official were, Aldermen Chas. Gould, Guy Patterson, E. East, W. Clevely, Margaret Crang, R. E. Foote and Mayor Clarke.

FOUR OPPOSE

Those opposing it were: Aldermen J. T. McCreath, J. W. Fry, Hugh J. Macdonald and Jas. East.

Members of the nominating committee which will select a man for council's approval are Ald. Foote, chairman, Ald. Clevely and Ald E. East.

Council also adopted the following recommendation of the special committee which held a preliminary conference on the mayor's plan:

That a by-law be passed defining the following duties to the three commissioners:

DUTIES

1—New commissioner — public works and utilities.

2—Mayor Clarke — chairman of the commission board, with charge of fire, police and relief departments; also publicity and entertainment and other matters not specifically allotted to the other members.

3—Commissioner David Mitchell collections and treasury.

Feature of the seven-four division on council was the sudden decision of Ald. Foote to support the appointment of the third official after he had intimated earlier in the meeting that he would oppose it.

While it was recommended that the new official be paid a salary of $4,000 a year, council tabled the salary question for later discussion. It was explained that the voluntary mayor's stipend be increased from $4,000, as at present, to $5,500, retroactive from November 13 (election day). This step was taken when it was explained that the voluntary

Relief Cases To Get Extra Cash For Xmas Time

Special Christmas cheer for Edmonton relief cases was granted Monday night by city council when special extra cash allowances for needy cases were ordered for the Yuletide season.

Following is the scale of allowances: Single families, $1; families of two or three, $1; families of four, five or six, $3; families of seven and over, $5. It was estimated this extra expenditure would total about $4,000.

It was originally recommended that single persons receive 50 cents each, and families of four, five or six, $2. Council suggested this extra expenditure would total about $4,000.

Ald. Margaret Crang, however, that these two classes are relief should receive more, and accordingly the allowances were increased.

Refunding Plan Is Well Received

Sympathetic consideration has been given by bond dealers to Premier William Aberhart's appeal for co-operation in refunding the Alberta public debt, Acting Premier Hon. Ernest C. Manning declared on Tuesday.

The general tenor of the replies was to express appreciation of the difficulty confronting the province and the need of some adjustment in bringing about financial relief.

Weather Vane Fools Airman

Variety of tricks played by the elements combined to keep "Wop" May in Edmonton Tuesday. While the well-known Canadian Airways pilot made ready to leave for the north early in the morning the weather bureau advised him that there was a heavy snow storm blowing south from Fort McMurray.

He waited until noon when he was advised that the airways were clear to the end of steel. Bringing his big Junkers out of the airport hangar he discovered that the snow was too sticky for a take-off—he will try again Wednesday morning.

Mackenzie Air Service reported that three of their pilots are still doing business in the north. Harry Hayter of Fort Resolution southbound Tuesday morning and Marlowe Kennedy was southbound out of Fort Smith. Stan McMillan was reported at Cameron Bay Monday night.

ROAD REPORT

The Alberta Motor Association road and weather report for Tuesday indicates no change in road conditions from points in various parts of Alberta.

A detailed report is as follows: Chauvin and Provost, road closed; Peace River highway, road in good condition. rivers frozen; North Battleford, Cherhill, Wainwright, Hughenden, Veteran, road in good condition.

All other points no word as to road condition.

Hudson Motor Moguls Ready At Confab

C. R. Gall, assistant sales manager (above) and Fred Behrens, general service manager (lower) executives of the Hudson Motors of Canada, Limited, on tour from their Tilbury, Ont., headquarters arrived in Edmonton Tuesday accompanied by Sidney Allen, western supervisor to lay plans for a convention to be held in the Macdonald hotel Wednesday. All Hudson dealers, distributors and salesmen from northern Alberta will attend a banquet in the hotel Wednesday evening.

MOTOR CHIEFS SEE BIG YEAR ON PRAIRIES

Believe Trade Treaty With United States to Have Big Effect

Dividing their attention between post mortems of the Winnipeg-Hamilton rugby classic and a review of the automotive industry in Canada, two executives of the Hudson Motors of Canada, Limited, two hours after their arrival here in the city, hung out the "welcome" mat for reporters.

Mortified by Hamilton's downfall and unable to explain the Winnipeggers' surprising triumph, the Hudson motor chiefs, C. R. Gall, assistant general sales manager, and August Behrens, service manager from Hudson Motors factory headquarters at Tilbury, Ontario, dismissed their gloom over Canadian football in a strong portion of enthusiasm over prospects for car sales in 1936. Their optimism was confirmed by Sidney Allen, western supervisor who had glowing reports to make of auto sales on the prairies.

On a swing across Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta following the Toronto and Montreal Motor Shows, the Hudson executives came to Edmonton to conduct dealer and distributor meetings to be held Wednesday in the Macdonald. Motion pictures, golf, talks, banquet fare and good fellowship will be employed to show dealers that this year they have a car "with five things you never saw before in an automobile."

PUBLIC IS READY

"Motor shows in eastern Canada have shown that the public is more than willing to co-operate with the manufacturers in purchasing new cars this fall and thus providing continued employment throughout the province of persons engaged in the production of Canadian-built cars," said Mr. Gall. "At the Toronto show, Hudson sales were four times greater than they were at the January show when the 1936 models were introduced. Since then we have been able to announce immediate delivery on certain cars and a result of the new Canadian-American trade treaty.

"Safety, riding comfort and smart appearance are the main features of the new Hudson-built cars," Mr. Gall added. "Introducing the five innovations you never saw before in an automobile', Hudson is confident that the public will be quick to appreciate the new motor values."

FIVE INNOVATIONS

Radial safety control, a wholly new principle in safety chassis engineering which makes riding safer, steering safer and stopping safer than ever before, is the chief development. The rhythmic ride, re-

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

People say that the modern young miss is hard-boiled and that she knows more than Santa Claus. Her every day actions and attitudes are so entirely different than were those of her great grandmother and she is known as the gay young soul as were the women before her.

Do you think that the Modern Miss is hard-boiled and that she lacks the necessities that make one desire to love her, asked the Inquiring Reporter this week. Here are the replies of the following:

JANET THOMPSON, clerk: "Well — girls go right on, romance flourishes and the furniture store still furnishes one home while the ministers still collect marriage fees. Hard or soft-boiled, the girls of today, like mountains, still get their man . . . so why worry."

NORMAN "CURLY" JOHNSON, mechanic: "Your definition is best answered 29 years from today. Vital statistics of 1935 will tell you whether today's women are hard-boiled and therefore unloved. Personally I think that the Modern Miss, just as she is, finds as much romance, the boys find them just as attractive as the lads did in the old horse and buggy days, when the demure, sweet young miss was forever assayin' 'Pardon-Me.'"

EVA CAMERON, saleswoman: "I've known for sometime that there is no Santa Claus—but it must be that I've retained some of the old lavender and lace girlish charm of the old fashioned miss—for while there is no Santa Claus—there are a lot of nice young men and they apparently seem to think we girls don't mind a-tall."

RAY PORTER, salesman: "The modern young miss is just as fine a lady as were the young women in the days of the Confederation. True, she may have advanced with the times but hasn't everything else in her generation, which I don't know much about the girls of days gone by other than what I've read, I'll take the girl of 1935 anytime."

HELEN HUTTON, clerk: "No matter how hard a front the average gum-chewing stenographer puts on, no matter how stiff the "Oh Yeah" attitude is, deep in her heart the little miss of today has her rose scented dreams. We are not as hard as we like to let on and most women know this, therefore there is in my opinion little difference in women of today and those days of long ago."

BILL MORRIS, athlete: "Well, I don't know much about the women of the middle 1800's, but I'm part I'm quite contented with the young lady of 1935."

BUD STANLEY, waiter: "There are cases where the women of today overstepped their rights, but on the whole they are just as fine and sweet as they have been since the time of Adam and Eve."

* * *

ALEX HAMMILL, clothes merchant: "I'm perfectly satisfied with today's Miss and don't care to discuss the subject."

BUDGET NOW UNDER REVIEW

Although Premier William Aberhart and other members of his cabinet are in Ottawa, a general hum of activity pervades the legislative buildings. And the reason is the session opening on Thursday, Feb. 6—the first occasion upon which a Social Credit government and legislature commences answering to the public for stewardship.

Departmental officials are heavily engaged in the preparation of material for inclusion in annual reports to be submitted to the house. Vast amount of statistical data is being collected, and adding machines are humming tabulating figures.

Auditors are at work compiling early drafts of departmental estimates for the fiscal year commencing on April 1 next and which must be ratified by the house. The watchword in all is that everything possible must be cut to the bone.

A corps of workmen is engaged cleaning and painting the buildings. The legislative chamber is being dusted off, light clusters being repaired and everything being placed in "apple pie" order.

So far there is no indication of much legislation, but that a no attention of the volume that may come down.

CRACKSMEN BUSY AT DRUMHELLER

DRUMHELLER, Alta., Dec. 10—Armed with eight efficient glass cutting equipment, midnight marauders raided the window of Jeweler E. Kelly and the store of Pollock's groceteria in the business district early this morning making a get-away with eleven rings, a small quantity of silver jewelry from the Mills store and about 2,000 cigarettes and $5 in small change from the grocery.

Entry was made to the two stores by cutting holes in the glass. Police are making progress, it was done by professionals passing through the district.

Apparently the thieves planned a safe cracking job at the Pollock store but as Mr. Pollock had left the safe unlocked and empty their efforts were unrewarded.

GYROS HEAR SOUTH SEAS TRAVEL TALK

Winnipegger Tells of Life On Tristan da Cunha

"Tristan da Cunha, the Lonely Island," was the subject of an interesting address given by Miss Hilda Hesson of Winnipeg, who is a world-wide traveller, to the Edmonton Gyro Club Tuesday noon.

"Tristan da Cunha is one of three islands in the southern Atlantic ocean, half-way between Cape Town and Buenos Aires, used by the British during the Napoleonic wars as a garrison to guard the sea lanes and prevent Napoleon's escape from St. Helena.

"After the wars were over a Mr. Glass of the British army settled there with his wife and family and formed the nucleus for a small settlement which originally consisted of seven families.

SIMPLE LIFE

"When we called at the island in February on board the Empress of Australia there were 260 people living there. They live on fish, potatoes and milk. Our ship unloaded 30 tons of supplies which included sugar, rice, flour, tea and coffee," Miss Hesson stated.

"There were 50 of the islanders away at Inaccessible Island, some 20 miles distant, collecting Penguin eggs. They collect 10,000 eggs in one time. The oil from the Penguin makes lights the lamps used by the islanders.

"Presents were distributed among the islanders which Their Majesties the King and Queen of England had sent to these people. The King sent knitting material, putty, glass, nails and paper. The Queen sent china tea sets, a gramophone and 125 records.

NOT MODERN

"An Tristan da Cunha there is no telegraph, no radio, no money and no paper money. Ships call at least at the island bringing supplies. Augusta Earl an English artist was once shipwrecked and had to stay on the island until a ship called a year later. He describes the island as 'an abomination of desolation,' consisting of sea, sky and rock.'

AFRAID TO MOVE

"The reason the inhabitants stay on the island although the British government have offered to remove them to other parts of the Empire, is because they have lived there for so long that they are afraid they would be unable to adjust themselves to the world as it is today," Miss Hesson declared.

The Padre, Mr. Wilde is governor, preacher, teacher and doctor on the island, under a three-year contract. He has been there over a year now and does not suffer from loneliness or not knowing what is occurring in other parts of the world.

"The people are mentally and physically fit. Some of the inhabitants though 80 years of age have perfect sets of teeth.

"Great Britain may some day use the island as an aviation landing base between Africa and South America," Miss Hesson stated in conclusion.

Council Urges City Holiday On Boxing Day

Boxing Day, December 26, will be observed in Edmonton to a certain extent if city council can do anything about it.

Monday night councillors passed the following resolution: "That in the opinion of the city council December 26, commonly called Boxing Day, ought to be observed in the city of Edmonton as a holiday, and that the mayor issue through the press an invitation to all business houses and factories to observe the said day as a general public holiday except for the performance of necessary and unavoidable work, and that insofar as possible all civic employees be granted a holiday on the said day."

This same resolution was passed last year.

Police Court

With an hour and three-quarters of the court's time taken up with hearing of evidence, all of which hinged around the same point, Mike Dawerluk, was convicted of failing to keep to the right of the centre line when passing another car, a breach of the vehicles and highway traffic act.

Expressing the opinion that the accused had not tried sufficiently hard to avoid accident, in which the truck damaged the car of Mrs. Martha Kiel, Magistrate Gibson fined him $15 and costs or 30 days, with the added provision that his driver's license be endorsed. The accident occurred on the 23 miles east of the city on the Clover Bar road. Two passengers in the car were injured when the left corner of the truck deck raked the left side of the car body.

Extensive 1936 Program is Prepared by Grits at Annual Meet

Meeting in their McLeod building headquarters on Monday night and enthusiastically drafting plans for the 1936 activities, the Edmonton Young Men's Liberal Club elected F. Armour Ford president for the coming year, in succession to Arthur Leonard, who did not seek re-election after holding the post for two years.

Other officers elected were: vice-president, J. Hurdy; secretary, Clayton McLennan; treasurer, John Hart.

Enthusiasm was the keynote of the evening.

Loud applause greeted the valedictory address of Retiring President Leonard.

TRACES ACTIVITIES

He traced the manifold activities of the club during the last year and stressed the valuable work accomplished on behalf of Liberalism in this city and province. The activities of the club had been numerous, he said. Many meetings had been held, all of which drew a large attendance of young people as well as their elders. The success of the club was due to the earnest desire on the part of all to co-operate and to work unreservedly for the interests of Liberalism.

Each of the incoming officers addressed the club briefly, thanking their fellow-members for the distinction conferred upon them and pledging themselves to carry on the club on the same lofty plane as heretofore and to endeavor to expand its scope and influence.

WITH ENTHUSIASM

Considerable discussion took place on the club's activities for 1936 and enthusiasm prevailed throughout. Several important gatherings are being planned and officers stated that an early announcement would be made of the first important event.

William Auxier, president of the Northern Alberta Young Men's Liberal Association was present and reported on its activities.

At the conclusion of the business session, the meeting resolved itself into a social evening, which was enjoyed by the many attending.

ANNIVERSARY POET HORACE REMEMBERED

Ceremony Conducted Monday by Professors of University

Commemorating the 2,000th anniversary of the birth of the Latin poet Horace, a ceremony arranged and conducted by professors of the Classics Department of the University took place last evening in Convocation Hall.

WON POPULARITY

Dr. W. H. Alexander, head of the Department of Classics, in performing the commemorative address described the poet as one whose delightfully human qualities had endeared him to successive generations of average people. Though he could scarcely be described as a moral instructor, said Dr. Alexander, and though he did not touch great heights of depths of thought, he had won enduring popularity by his ability to express the thoughts and feelings of the great mass of humanity, and to do this with an economy and a beauty of language beyond the ability of lesser men.

The average man who reads his poetry finds there thoughts and ideals with which he is familiar and which he is glad to find reflected in the shrine of the muses himself.

ONE-ACT PLAY

Dr. W. G. Hardy contributed to the program an engaging one-act play written by himself, illustrating an incident when might have taken place in the life of the poet. It was admirably directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Sprigg Hayter, and conveyed to the audience in a most realistic manner the feeling and manners attributable to the historical characters represented. Those taking part were, Miss Marie Hansen, Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Hazel Sutherland, Lawrence Alexander and Charles Churchill.

An octette singing in the original selections from Horace's odes, was directed by Mrs. Ethel Wood, and included Miss E. Gerwin, Miss Margaret Hutton, Miss Mary Campbell, Miss Mary Wilson, Miss M. W. Neathy, Prof. Andrew Stewart, Dr. J. W. Macgregor and Jack Dorsey.

RUNAWAY CAR KILLS MINER

Death came to Charles Hulme, pit boss of the Blue Point Mine, 10 miles south-east of Edmonton, a few minutes after 9:00 a.m. Monday when he was struck down by a runaway tipple car which raced uncontrolled down the mine slope after tearing loose from its moorings.

Hulme was working at the foot of the shaft, coupling full cars to be hauled to the surface when an empty on its return trip up the steep grade broke loose and plunged down the slope. The force of the impact hurled him across a newly-loaded coal car.

Rushed from the mine in a car to the University hospital, the pit boss, on examination, was found to have suffered fracture of the skull, a fractured leg and internal injuries. Miners living around the district for many years, Hulme the past two winters has been working as pit boss at the Blue Point Mine.

MAYOR CLARKE WINS VICTORY IN NEW DEAL

NO CUT MADE

Recommendation that the salary of Commissioner Mitchell, member of the commission board, be reduced from the existing figure of $4,800 to $4,500 to conform with the mayor's stipend, was opposed, and Mr. Mitchell will continue at $4,800. This decision was made as a result of the explanation that Mayor Clarke was given a car allowance, which was not received by his fellow commissioner.

A surprise move Monday night was a notice of motion submitted by Ald. Fry urging that concil consider the advisability of forming a city managership type of administration instead of the three-man commission board. The alderman stated that at the next meeting of council he would move that commissioners obtain data from cities which have city managers acting in an executive capacity in the civic government.

ADDED COST

Concensus of opinion among councillors opposing the third commissioner idea was that such an official was unnecessary, that business could be efficiently handled by the two existing commissioners, Mayor Clarke and Commissioner Mitchell, and that the extra official would mean an added expense to the city.

Aldermen favoring the appointment argued that the new commissioner would give the commission board of three a majority vote on matters which came before it; also, that he could effect economies in the utilities and public services which would save Edmonton more than his salary.

The view was taken by council that salaries of commissioners could be reviewed when the question of pay for civic employees was discussed during the report on 1936 estimates, which are at present being compiled.

JAS. EAST OBJECTS

First remark in the discussion on the new office was made by Ald. Jas East, who objected to the extra cost involved. "These are days of curtailment and no time to launch into further expenditure," he said, adding that the present commission board set-up was satisfactory.

Taking the opposite view, Ald. Clevely stated he had moved the motion proposing a third commissioner because there was too much work for the two present officials. A man put in charge of utilities could effect economies which would save more than his salary. He felt a qualified engineer should be hired and that the appointment should not be a political one.

Ald. Fry declared he was absolutely opposed to the appointment, as there was no more need for a third commissioner than there was for a fifth wheel on a wagon. The city had seen the "greatest financial insanity" when there had been the greatest number of officials in the commission board. "Evidently the third commissioner would be a sort of referee, and $4,000 is too much for this purpose," averred the alderman. Any disagreements occurring between Mayor Clarke and Commissioner Mitchell could be referred to council for a decision.

LESS INTERFERENCE

"What we want is not more supervision, but less interference of a political nature," continued Ald. Fry, referring to administration of departments. He felt that it might be better to experiment with a one-man commission board, the city manager idea, than to consider a three-man board.

"If a minority is to run this city, go right ahead," declared Mayor Clarke as he rose to speak in support of his proposal. In passing he complained he had been hampered in his administration duties during the past year because certain aldermen had informed superintendents they had no need to carry out orders until "we get Clarke out."

Taking strong exception to such a statement, Ald. Fry demanded to be told the names of aldermen in question.

"I think you are one, but I'm not sure," replied the mayor.

Ald. Fry objected to such insinuations.

Continuing, Mayor Clarke charged that "no business had been done this year yet" by council. Either the commission board should be composed by three men or one. Two was not satisfactory "because Mr. Mitchell and I have diametrically opposite ideas."

COST NO MORE

In closing his argument, Mayor Clarke said the third commissioner would not cost the city one more dollar than at present, for he would be able to effect economics. "Leaks in city expenditures are so great that the salary of a third commissioner is a mere bagatelle," he stated.

Supporting the proposal, Ald. E. East said the suggested official would bring about a closer contact between the commission board and departmental heads, and he felt that certain economies could thus be made. "A salary of $4,000 is neither here nor there and I think it is a step in the right direction," he stated.

Ald. Macdonald expressed the view that two commissioners were sufficient. The mayor was a directing link with the electors, and as an elected representative he would be in the minority if a board of three were formed. The two commissioners might differ on various questions but this point could be overcome if they each submitted separate reports to city council.

CHANGES IDEA

While he had been inclined to favor the appointment of a third commissioner last year, he was of a different opinion this year, Ald. Foote told council. "I'm not shifting my ground. 'A wise man changes his mind but a fool never'," Ald. Foote quoted, adding that he believed no decision should be made until council had had an opportunity of discussing the A. K. Whiston report.

The Whiston report, a survey of civic departments and recommending certain consolidations and changes in administrative methods, was presented to council early this year and filed without further action being taken on the results of the survey.

URGES DELAY

Ald. McCreath expressed himself in opposition to the appointment. If the third commissioner could make outside contacts with heads of the utility departments, the idea would be alright. But if his deliberations were brought into the commission board, the city would have the same situation as existed at present. He also favored a delay in a decision until the Whiston report could be dealt with.

Favoring the appointment, Ald. Patterson argued commissioners had evidently arrived at an impasse as far as their views on administration were concerned. He believed a man for the position could be chosen from the civic staff, and that money could be saved in this way.

If the mayor and commissioner "are diametrically opposed in their views" the only way to break the deadlock was to have a third person on the commission board, argued Ald. Gould.

Just prior to the vote being taken, Ald. Fotoe surprised council by saying he would not vote. It was pointed out that the aldermen had to vote "unless a personal matter was at stake." Ald. Foote then voted in support of the appointment, making a seven-to-four division on the question.

Council decided it would be unwise to fix the salary for the third commissioner until all other angles in the appointment had been thoroughly reviewed. Accordingly, the item was tabled for the time being.

Contained in the recommendations of the special committee was the proposal that salaries of Mayor Clarke and Commissioner Mitchell be equalized at $4,500. Aldermen ordered the mayor's 1935 salary cut restored, giving him $4,500, but refused to reduce Mr. Mitchell's salary from $4,800 to $4,500. The view was taken that the last-named official did not receive a car allowance, while the mayor did.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Dec. 10.—Thomas Ross and party of Markerville passed through here Thursday on their return from a hunting trip up the Brazeau river, where Mr. Ross has a cabin.

They travelled with a four horse team and wagon, as the road is impassable for cars, and they brought out the largest load of game ever taken out of the Brazeau, two deer, two moose, two elk, a coyote; also three silver grey foxes which they purchased.

The hunters report elk very plentiful there. Mr. Ross counted the herd from which he got his, with the aid of field glasses, and there were over ninety elk in the one herd.

OPENING GAME BIDS

An inquiry from a Cincinnati card club asks when an opening game bid should be made. This subject is an important one. Ordinarily partner may be trusted for three supporting tricks, when declarer requires no assistance in trumps. When an opening game bid is made, usually the hand justifying such a call can utilize only specific holdings. The safe limit which partner can be trusted to contribute is only two supporting tricks.

An opening game bid denies slam hopes. It asks partner to supply only two tricks to enable the declarer to go game. The opening bidder of a game seldom expects to win more than a defensive trick or two. One of the prime objects of the shut-out bid is to prevent opponents from discovering the call at which they may go game.

The hand shown below obligates an opening bid of 4 Hearts. It wants to shut-out a black suit call.

♠ None ♦ 9 8 6 3
♥ A K Q 10 7 5 4 2 ♣ 5

Although the next hand is a two-suiter, an opening bid of 4 Spades should be made. It is improbable that the hand can go game at clubs, unless it also can do so at the major suit call.

♠ K Q J 10 7 6 3 ♦ 4
♥ None ♣ A K Q J 7

Never mind score, strength, or vulnerability, provided you hold probable game-going strength. Bid the game you have reason to expect may be made. I dealt the South hand shown below. Fearing that opponents might have a red suit game I made an opening bid of 4 Spades, with only a single quick trick in hand. My call was too high for either opponent to risk a bid of 5 Hearts, which would have been a spread.

North: ♠ 4 ♥ 7 6 4 ♦ 5 4 3 2 ♣ A 9 7 6 5

West: ♠ A 1 ♥ A Q 10 9 2 ♦ 9 7 ♣ K J 8 3

East: ♠ K 6 ♥ K J 8 5 3 ♦ A 8 ♣ Q 10 4 2

South: ♠ Q J 10 9 8 5 3 2 ♥ None ♦ K Q J 10 6 ♣ None

The opening lead was the 9 of diamonds. East's Ace won. There being nothing to trap in dummy's hearts, the return lead was the 5 of that suit, which I ruffed. My Q of trumps was led. East's K took the trick and again he ruffed me with a heart. The J of spades went to West's Ace and again I was ruffed, but that could not worry a declarer having eight trumps.

Although my partner did not contribute a single trick, I had to lose only two trump tricks and a single diamond trick.

Suppose either that West had dealt and bid 1 Heart, or that he had overcalled a low opening spade bid, either I must have bid 5 Spades and been doubled or opponents would have scored game at hearts.

SAYS POLICE USED STICKS ON EVERYONE

W. E. Neuert Tells How He Was Struck Over the Head

REGINA, Dec. 10.—Citizens' eye-witness evidence of the riot in Regina's market square on the evening of July 1 last occupied the riot inquiry Monday. At the afternoon sitting Rev. J. F. Stewart, pastor of Carmichael United Church, and W. E. Neuert, unemployed bricklayer, testified. A sixth counsel, H. E. Sampson, K.C., appeared before the inquiry, to represent the Regina city police. Mr. Neuert was in the thick of the market square melee and told how he was struck on the head. He was sure it was a mounted policeman that hit him, he told the Royal Commission conducting the inquiry.

VAN-LOAD OF POLICE

He had helped to connect up loud-speaker equipment for the market square meeting, Mr. Neuert said, and was on a ladder, against the weigh-scale building there, holding the wires above the heads of spectators when he saw a van unload a squad of R.C.M. Police at the north side of the square.

"I let a yell outa me," he said. The police formed a line, a whistle was blown at the city police station, and out came the city police also, "yelling, roaring and swinging their batons, knocking down whoever they could get ahold of."

WOMEN TRAMPLED

He saw baby carriages knocked down and trampled, he said. Later in cross-examination by B. D. Hograth, K.C., counsel for the federal government and R.C.M.P., he said it was just one carriage he saw knocked down. He named Mrs. S. G. Young, living on Halifax street, as one of the women knocked down.

"A bunch of plain clothes policemen grabbed Evans," he said, referring to Arthur Evans, on-to-Ottawa trek leader, who was on an improvised platform on the square.

"There was a couple of scraps going on and I got mixed up in one and got a bat over the head." He went to Gates garage nearby to get his head bathed. Later he went home with his cap covered with blood, got washed up and came back to market square. He saw gas bombs thrown by R.C.M.P. "and being an old soldier I threw some back." Going home he passed the British American oil station Osler street and 11th avenue and saw "mounted police chasing around there and women screaming."

TELLS HOW HE WAS HIT

Telling how he was hit Mr. Neuert said there were two policemen, one said "a sideswipe at me with one of them shillalahs" and the other hit him on the head.

He was positive he saw a city policeman "tramp right over a baby carriage."

Chief Justice Brown, the chairman: "Do you say the police knocked one down?"

Answer: "Most decidedly."

He saw "an Irishman with three mounted policemen pounding him with his shirt torn off."

NORTH MINING PROBLEM COST OF TRANSPORT

Stimulation Of Cheap Transportation Essential Says Dr. Wallace

The real problem in the development of northern mining fields is distance and hence cost of transportation, stated Dr. R. C. Wallace Monday afternoon, at the Chamber of Commerce board rooms, McLeod building, to a committee recently appointed to form a Chamber of Mines.

"The stimulation of cheap trade and transportation is essential and would be part of the activity of an efficient Chamber of Mines. It is necessary to get producing mines on a sound and established basis if the north is to be properly developed. The Chamber of Mines could do a great deal in helping to bring this about.

CLEARING HOUSE

"A large part of the work of such a chamber would be to act as a clearing house; to assemble and clear information based upon definite and accurate data. The chamber should also bring to the attention of governments those districts in which geological surveys are needed in order to determine whether development of a field is advisable. The business point of view is a contribution which can be made by such an organization," Dr. Wallace declared.

Speaking from the experience he had gained as a result of being associated, from a government standpoint, with the mining development of Manitoba, Dr. Wallace advised that, in a city the size of Edmonton, one good organization in connection with mining development is all that is needed. He felt that it would be a mistake to divorce the proposed body from the Chamber of Commerce and that a linkage of the two organizations was imperative.

WORK IN CO-OPERATION

The committee which is investigating the possibilities of establishing the new Chamber of Mines has from the first taken the stand that the new body should work in the closest co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce, and that certain executive members would hold office on both directorates in order to co-ordinate the work of the two bodies.

Dr. Wallace remarked that transportation rates, including aviation rates, would have to be reduced in order to open up the northern fields.

REOPEN PROBE SMALL MYSTERY

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—The Ontario government will reopen investigation into the disappearance of Ambrose J. Small, Toronto theatre magnate, in 1919, it was learned Monday. Attorney-general Roebuck, it was reported, communicated from Ottawa with Patrick Sullivan, investigator acting on behalf of sisters of Small, and told him senior solicitor W. B. Common would interview him and the Misses Small to ascertain what evidence they have.

Sullivan declared his evidence will throw light on several angles of the case, and will include letters sent to the Misses Small by friends of Mrs. Small, indicating Small's disappearance was expected in some quarters.

Ask Dominion To Abandon Taxation Of Ontario Mines

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—The Ontario government is going to press the federal authorities to abandon completely the taxation of mines and leave the field entirely to the province, The Globe in a story Monday says it learned over the week-end.

"The Ontario delegation to the dominion conference," the article continues, "claims Ontario has spent millions of dollars in developing the north country by building highways and railways and other developments, and is entitled to the revenue."

Hon. J. Malcolm Buried Monday

KINCARDINE, Ont., Dec. 10.—From all walks of life and all parts of Canada, men and women gathered here Monday to pay their last respects to Hon. James Malcolm former minister of trade and commerce in the former Liberal government under Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Only relatives and a few intimate friends attended a private service held at the family residence, prior to a public service. Employees of the furniture company which bears his name mingled with cabinet ministers in the throng which filled Knox Presbyterian church.

The remains were borne to the family mausoleum.

Aberhart Says He's Entirely Misinformed

OTTAWA, Dec. 10.—Premier William Aberhart of Alberta admitted today he had been "misinformed" in the charge he made here The Canadian Press carried a despatch some time ago that 25 Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen had been sent to Alberta to protect him.

"I was entirely misinformed," the Alberta premier said when shown a statement by J. F. B. Livesay, general manager of The Canadian Press, denying the news agency had carried the despatch referred to. "My information was all wrong," he added.

The Alberta premier made the charge here Sunday while addressing a congregation at St. James United church, claiming he had been misrepresented and maligned in the press of Canada.

"If Mr. Livesay says the Canadian Press did not carry the despatch, that settles it," said Mr. Aberhart.

Dr. Tory Claims Taking Over Of Railways Mistake

VANCOUVER, Dec. 10.—The taking over of railroads and not taking over the land settlement schemes which had paralleled them, was one mistake in Canada's handling of the railway problem, Dr. H. M. Tory, Canadian educationalist and scientist, told the Canadian Club in an address here Monday.

"Had we spent half the money we have lent on railway deficits in promoting national land settlement schemes, by now the railways would have been self-supporting," he said.

Dr. Tory defended the building of railways, but regretted the way it was done in many instances, though he still believed they were one of the country's greatest assets.

CLASH OVER SILK TARIFF

OTTAWA, Dec. 10—Importers and manufacturers of artificial silk yarns clashed before the tariff board Monday as the former asked for a reduction in the rates of duty on yarn and the latter opposed.

Applications from Canadian interests for revision of the yarn duties were heard in connection with the application of the Lancashire cotton trade for lowering of duties on cotton and artificial silk cloths.

Chairman George H. Sedgewick said although the British delegation had made no reference to yarns it was absurd to ask for a reduced duty on cloth without considering a reduction on the yarn from which the cloth was made.

Representing Canadian manufacturers using artificial silk yarns, R. P. Sparks of Ottawa asked for lowering of the duties on yarns of the classes known as cellulose acetate and viscose yarns.

AFTERMATH OF QUEBEC RIOT

The man in hospital is Charles Parent of Beauport, suffering from head wounds. He recovered consciousness tonight but extent of his injuries has not been definitely established pending development of x-ray plates.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE By Ahearn

Today's Markets

At Toronto—Mines

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—The Mining section of the Toronto exchange was decidedly unsettled today, the disturbing influences including a weak New York board, an upset in the silver market in London and an apparently over-bought condition in the base metal sections.

Losses ranging up to 65 cents in the cheaper base metals and a point in the big issues were boarded. Late in the day the golds gave a demonstration on the up side, led by heavy buying at advancing prices in McIntyre, Dome and Teck Hughes.

At New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Mining issues reacted sharply in today's stock market following further price confusion in world silver centres.

While the list, generally, was unsettled by the sagging metals, a number of specialties moved against the trend. Losses of 1 to around 9 points were recorded by the mines. The close was heavy. Transfers approximated 2,500,000 shares.

Toronto—Industrials

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—Moving up and down in gusts of optimism and depression, the Toronto industrial share market closed with a display of heaviness today.

Nickel weakened to 44¾ to show a net loss of 2¼. Liquor, food, steel and miscellaneous issues closed on the downside.

London was reported to be a seller of Nickel in the early part of the session. Smelters closed around 210 for a net loss of 5. Brazilian Traction dipped but recovered. C.P.R. was off a narrow fraction and Ford A was able to stand up against the general swing to show a net gain of a fraction.

At Montreal

MONTREAL, Dec. 10. — Declines ranging from fractions to four or more points were registered on the Montreal stock exchange today.

The metal shares slumped sharply following a broad decline in the price of silver on world markets. Smelters touched 206⅞ before recovering to a final quotation of 212 where it held, a loss of 4½ points.

Canada Northern Power was down ½ at 22 and Canada Hydro Electric preferred 2 points at 44, while Montreal Power surrendered an early gain to close unchanged.

BROOMHALL

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—If the U.S. millers grind 160,000,000 bushels of wheat in four months, they should use 480,000,000 in the year together with 80,000,000 to seed the proposed 52,000,000 acres for 1936. Chicken feed and sundry feeding may take additional 60,000,000, or a grand total of 620,000,000 for all possible requirements. Supplies on hand, according to official estimates, are: Crop 599,000,000; carryover 154,000,000; Canadian imports (five months) 15,986,000, a total to Nov. 30 of 769,000,000, estimated Canadian imports (seven months) 25,000,000, a grand total supply of 794,000,000 bushels.

If the above figures are nearly correct then there is a credit balance in the country of 174,000,000 from which must be deducted the occasional flour exports that are being made month by month of about 15,000,000 in the year, so that the end of the season carryover should be the same as it was on June 30, 1935.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—Produce prices here today: Eggs, grade A large, doz. 38c; churning cream, No. 1, lb. 26c; butter, No. 1 solids, lb. 25¼c.

WHEAT STEADY DESPITE SELLING

WINNIPEG, Dec. 10.—Wheat prices were steady despite heavy selling on the Winnipeg grain exchange today, supported by export sales of Canadian wheat. Values closed unchanged to ½ cent higher. December at 83⅝, May 87⅛ and July 87¾ cents.

In one of the most active sessions in some time, liberal offerings poured into the trading pit throughout the day. Much of the selling was believed to have emanated from the Canadian Wheat Board, swelled by sales from outside sources.

It was estimated 500,000 bushels of wheat were sold for shipment abroad today. In addition, "hedges" were lifted in the pit against previous sales of an estimated 1,000,000 bushels, this support offsetting the selling orders.

Liverpool closed ⅝d lower to ½d higher. Buenos Aires was up two cents at noon, and Chicago gained a fraction.

Cash grains spreads were about unchanged. Coarse grains were firm.

ESKIMOS WHIP CALGARY TIGERS IN PRO BATTLE

Another Battler Pointed for a Bout With Joe Louis

D'ATS D'ANS by BILL LEWIS

ESKIMOS made their second home start of the season last night—and made it a winning one. . . . Unlike the opener a few weeks ago, when the Blubber-Eaters were completely dominated by Calgary's attacking line of former major-leaguers, last night's game saw the locals hold the upper-hand throughout, and they were unfortunate in winning by only 2-1. . . . Sam Timmins, Calgary goalie, of course, was the main factor in holding Eskimos to two goals. . . . Repeatedly they broke through the visitors' defence, but just as often they were stopped by the barrier thrown up by the talkative Calgary netminder.

The Esks, with few exceptions looked a lot better than in their opener here. . . . They skated fast and put a lot more zip into their play than was in evidence November 17. . . . If they can keep that up for the remainder of the week, they should fare well in their three coming games with Tigers.

INCIDENTALLY, Owner Henry Roche announced last night that he was trying hard to secure Trey Savage, now playing with Calgary, from Montreal Canadiens. . . . He has offered to trade Archie Carter and Napoleon Carriere for him, with Carrier not reporting until after this season. . . . Savage would be a great help to the local club if Roche should be successful in putting through the deal. He hopes to have an answer to his offer today.

Next start of the senior amateurs will be on Thursday, when Dominions and Superiors lock horns. . . . Both did well over the week-end and Soops are hopeful of wiping out the setback they suffered in their last meeting.

FROM the small amount of comment that seeped through yesterday from the East concerning Winnipeg's victory in the Dominion football title battle, it is that Easterners are pretty well satisfied the Westerners were far too good for Hamilton Tigers. . . . Comment of two writers follows:

"Quit bowling! The better team won a great game," is the way Lou Marsh, writing in the Toronto Star, put it when referring to remarks that the new champions were bolstered by nine stars from the United States.

"MY HAT is off to the Western champions," continues Lou "They took the worst of it. . . . A month's layoff. . . . The long journey East. . . . Rules they were not used to. . . . And spotted the Tigers their own field and beat them in front of their own crowd. . . . Beat them so thoroughly there was not a yip one of Edmonton's best youthful hockey products, was again in the scoring last night, registering a goal and an assist as he led the Eskimo attack. Carse is right up with the scorers, having eight points to date.

MAJORS OPEN ANNUAL MART ON PLAYERS

By PAUL MICKELSON

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—Trade winds all but blew the veteran Connie Mack into hiding last night as major leaguers opened their annual big league baseball player mart.

Connie, hoarse after denying at least a score of reports as to disposition of his outstanding stars, hid for a while in his hotel and then came out boldly to announce he had nothing to say.

The latest and apparently best report investing the patriarch of the Athletics was that he already had completed the sale of Jimmy Foxx, Eric McNair, Roger Cramer and Johnny Marcum to Boston Red Sox for $500,000, pitcher Jim Welch, outfielder Carl Reynolds and possibly infielder Bill Werber. Other reports had approximately the same players leaving Philadelphia, but a varying assortment of vets and rookies from Boston in the deal.

While club owners and their managers circulated around and attempted to swap a dozen buttons for star players, National Leaguers worked overtime to straighten out the Boston Brave situation.

President Ford Frick intimated that Charles Francis Adams would re-purchase the club, now league property, and install Bob Quinn, present Brooklyn general manager, as president in full charge. The financial reorganization plan will be submitted at the league meeting today.

Bengals Beaten Worse Than 2-1 Score Indicates

Bill Carse and Louis Holmes Score Goals As Locals Larrup Southerners—Game is Fast Throughout

By BILL LEWIS

Out-playing their rivals by a much wider margin than the score indicates, Edmonton Eskimos speeded to a 2-1 victory over Calgary Tigers at the Arena last night in the second local game of the Northwestern Hockey League this season.

Esks carried the fight to the southerners for most of the 60 minutes of play, and stormed in on their goal time after time, only to be foiled at the fortress by the spectacular work of Goalie Sam Timmins.

TIMMINS REAL STAR OF BATTLE

The colorful Timmins, bane of efficials and crowd-baiter extra-ordinary, rose to starry heights in turning back the Igloomen. On repeated occasions, the locals raced in for seemingly-certain goals, only to have their drives handled in nonchalant fashion by the sorrel-topped netminder. Thus, the Esks had to be satisfied with a win with only one goal to spare.

Young Bill Carse, playing his second year of professional hockey, led the torrid assault on Timmins. Carse finished up the night with one goal and an assist, and threatened the Calgary goal plenty of times.

Les Whittles, who was credited with an assist, and Louis Holmes, with the other Eskimo goal, rounded out a high-powered scoring line. Sidney Rimstad, who suffered knee injury in the team's last start in Portland, played what was probably his best hockey since turning pro, while Manager Ronnie Martin was greatly improved over his first appearance here in an Eskimo uniform and did a lot of effective work.

HOLD BIG-LEAGUERS

Calgary's ex big-league line of Dutch Gainor, Tony Savage and Stew Adams did not dominate the game as they did in the opener here, but they did play good hockey all the way.

Carl and Chris. Sorenson, the former Calgary amateurs, who made up two-thirds of the other firing line for Tigers, combined to count their only goal, while the veteran Ernie Anderson did fully his share in handling his assignment.

The slim crowd of fans that turned out to witness the game saw action all the way as the rivals quarrelled for the first time in about three weeks.

Eskimos had a number of dangerous-looking chances in the opening part of the first period but they were unable to capitalize on any until after the 18-minute mark. Then, after a fast combination play, Les Whittles whipped a pass-out from behind the goal to Carse and the latter blazed it into the twine for a tally that gave Esks a 1-0 lead as the session ended.

TIGERS IMPROVE

Calgary showed great improvement as the second period got underway and threatened McCusker on a number of occasions, but Red playing in faultless style, held off every attack of the visitors.

Sixteen minutes of this frame had been ticked off on the timer's watch when Eskimos clinched the verdict on a fine play. Holmes, Carse and Loren Mercer broke away on a three-man rush, with only one defencemen to beat. The puck went in behind the goal and Carse snapped it out to Holmes, who banged it past Timmins for the second and what proved to be the winning goal.

The final period was crammed with lots of action, and saw Tigers roar in on the Eskimo fort on a number of occasions, but McCusker was able to hold them at bay—except once, when, near the finish, Carl and Chris Sorenson teamed pp for the southerners' lone marker, the former scoring on a close-in play.

BEATS CANUCK

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10.—Eddie "Babe" Risko, middleweight champion of the world, won the closest kind of a decision from his outstanding North American rival, Frankie Battaglia of Winnipeg last night, and took a round of booing from 7,000 fans at the arena for the unimpressive way he did it. It was undoubtedly the handsome young Canadian who made the fight by aggressiveness made the fight by his aggressiveness and harder punching throughout.

SOUTH SIDE OUT TO BEAT E. A. C.

Meeting for the first in a regulation league game, E.A.C and South Side Junior squads will train their guns on each other, Wednesday, December 11, at the Arena.

In the season's exhibition series, the South Siders beat the E.A.C. to the tune of a 3-2 score after a bitter struggle and they feel confident of repeating this feat tomorrow night. If they do, all teams will be tied with two points to their credit in the league standing. In their last game the boys from across the river suffered the surprising 6-2 defeat at the hands of the Canadians and they will be out to offset this loss with a win.

A trip in the E.A.C. camp will convince you that the blue and gold squad is equally confident of their ability to take the South Siders for a ride and no crop first place in the junior league standing with four points, leaving the South Side in the bottom slot. After beating the bruising Canucks last Sunday, Ted Carrigan crew hopes are high.

Clarence Campbell will handle the game, which starts at 8:30.

TIGER ROOKIE IN SPOTLIGHT PRO. HOCKEY

CALGARY, Dec. 10.—Carl Sorenson, Calgary Tiger rookie wingman with only six professional starts, held the spotlight in Northwestern Hockey League statistics through his play-making ability. In two starts last week he garnered one goal and six assists to go into a tie for ninth place in the individual scoring list.

Two other Tigers moved up into a contending position for scoring leadership. The veteran Dutch Gainor moved into a tie for third place.

Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall of Vancouver, held the two top places without adding a point.

Vancouver Wins Leadership Again

VANCOUVER, Dec. 10—Vancouver Lions took over leadership of the Northwestern hockey league when they defeated Seattle Seahawks 3-1.

The victory sent the Lions into a first place tied over the idle Portland Buckaroos and dropped the Seahawks into a tie with Edmonton Eskimos in the league cellar.

Lions collected the first counter of the game in the middle period after a scoreless first session, and added two more in the third with Seahawks lone tally sandwiched in between.

Walter Creasy, Brian Hextall and Lude Palm scored for Lions.

Johnny Sheppard chalked up the Seahawks' goal on a double assist from Ralph Smith and Gagne.

Winnipegs Receive Praise As Quartet Claimed All-Stars

Writers Give Opinions After Watching 'Pegs Crushing Triumph

By ELMER DULMAGE

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—The west's new football champions of Canada, the Winnipegs, received a flattering tribute today from the boys in the press box. Having reviewed Saturday's intersectional final at Hamilton in all its glamorous aspects, eastern sports writers told the Canadian Press they would put at least four Winnipegs on any all-Canadian team.

A dozen writers and critics from Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor and other eastern cities gave their views after watching the Manitobans crush Hamilton Tigers 18-12 and take the Grey Cup west for the first time. Some of them thought so highly of Winnipegs they named a half-dozen for all - Canadian honors.

ACCORDED PLACES

But Fritz Hanson, the year's super ball-carrier; Bert Oja, bone-crushing inside; Bob Fritz, 198-pound quarterback, and lanky Bud Marquardt, one of the most versatile outside wings to play in this sector in many years, were accorded places on the mythical national team with few votes of non-confidence.

The writers used the Canadian Press All-Eastern teams as a basis and here is the All-Canadian they think should go into the records:

Flying wing—Ted Morris, Toronto Argonauts.

Halves—Abe Eliowitz, Ottawa; Huck Welch, Hamilton; Fritz Hanson, Winnipegs.

Quarter—Bob Fritz, Winnipegs.

Snap—Buddy Meiers, Ottawa.

Inside—Bert Oja, Winnipegs; George Pigeon, Montreal.

Middles—Tommy Burns, Argos; Pete Jeklin, Montreal.

Outsides—Wes. Cutler, Argos; Bud Marquardt, Winnipegs.

BEACH IS OUT

It was the general impression that Sarnia's giant Ormond Beach could be removed to make a place for the amazing Hanson, although Beach was named for the All-Eastern team primarily because of his defensive strength. The writers polled out quickly that Oja would do Beach's work to the satisfaction of all.

Several writers thought Lou Mogul, Winnipeg middle, was at least as good as the All-Eastern middles, Tommy Burns and Pete Jotkus. More than one viewed Greg Kabat as a superior flying wing to Ted Morris, himself a former Winnipeg player, and three or four writers called Joe Perpich a better outside than Wes Cutler of Argos.

Badminton Tourney Starts February 6th

At a recent meeting of the Edmonton committee of the Alberta Badminton Association, the date of the provincial tournament to be held here, was set for February 6, 7, and 8. The various committees governing tournament entertainment and prizes have been appointed and plans are forging ahead for the success of the tourney. It is expected that the Inglewood club will provide the necessary facilities for the event.

Lougheed Curling

LOUGHEED, Dec. 10—In the president vs vice-president competition at the curling rink last week, ten rinks of curlers competed for the honors, the vice-president team coming out 7 points to the good in the final game played Friday.

Skips of the winning rinks were: J. Caudwell, vice-president. John Barthel, H. A. McDonald, F. Grandage and R. E. McCracken.

HALIFAX ASKS NAME BE USED FOR OLYMPICS

Former Wolverine Boss is Surprised Ports to Carry Colors

HALIFAX, Dec. 10. — Canada's Olympic hockey team should go to Berlin under the name and colors of Halifax Wolverine, Jack Conn, manager of the 1935 Allan Cup winners, declared last night.

"I was very much surprised to read in papers that Canada's Olympic team would play under the name and colors of Port Arthur Bear Cats when it is really an all-star team," he said, adding that Wolverines were prepared to furnish as many players as Port Arthur—Captain Ernie Holmes, Vince Ferguson, Chummie Lawlor, Daddy Burbar and Everett Porteous.

"When Wolverines informed the C.A.H.A. Nov. 22 that they would be unable to organize a full team and Port Arthur was selected in their place, I understood the Bear Cats were intact," he continued.

"Now I understand that only a small percentage of the Bear Cat team will make the trip and I see no reason why they should absorb all the publicity when the Wolverine, who, after all, won the Allan Cup, are prepared to furnish the Olympic team with as many players as Port Arthur."

Later Conn sent the following telegram to E. A. Gilroy, Portage La Prairie, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association: "Due to Canada's Olympic team being practically an all-star aggregation, including only five Port Arthur and four Wolverine players, with a fifth Halifax player available, I think the team should go as Halifax Wolverines with myself as manager. Wolverines, as Allan Cup winners, should get the benefit of any Olympic publicity for their home town and province."

President Gilroy Sticks To Name

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., Dec. 10.—Canada's Olympic hockey team will be known as Port Arthur Bearcats, said E. A. Gilroy, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, here.

HOCKEY SIDELIGHTS

BY RAY COLLETT

He's Kelly and he's Irish and he's hot-headed and when he drops over the boards the bored-looking fans on the front row sit up and take notice. For when Regis "Pep" Kelly is playing hockey, there is generally something doing.

For a youngster just out of amateur ranks, Toronto's Pep Kelly can probably take top honors as the game's best squabble promoter. It's just as natural for Kelly to cross swords with his opponents first time they meet, as it is to eat. Perhaps it's just that he is Irish. Coming playing days just can't help getting irked at the lad who skates like a whirlwind, and despite his immature weight, won't halt for the biggest and toughest defenceman in the league.

Before Toronto Maple Leafs snapped him up, along with Mets and Art Jackson in an effort to duplicate the original kid line, Kelly had the distinction of playing on two Dominion championship teams. He starred with Newmarket juniors when they copped the crown and then stepped out with St. Michael's college, who also went through to top honors. Kelly plays right wing, checks hard and often, skates unusually fast and his powerful pair of legs can stand the heavy going longer than average.

ALL-STAR BOXING CARD AT EMPIRE

Having secured some of the best talent available, Promoters Sammy Chapman and Tex Gibson of the Empire Edmonton boxing fans an all-star card at the New Empire theatre, Wednesday, December 18.

Headlining the card is a battle between Jim Ilskier of Vancouver and Don Wells of Red Deer. Both these boxers are rated very highly and have what it takes to make the bout a good one.

On the semi-wind-up Kid Alcide of Alhabara will fight Steve Stergire of Tawatina, while on the preliminary, Don "Jaw-breaker" Carmichael of Prairie Flash will fight Emil Zerch of Edmonton.

Both promoters themselves returned soldiers, have graciously offered a generous percentage of the proceeds to the Bulletin Not Forgotten Fund.

Varsity To Play Vegreville Team In Tilt Tonight

Tonight the Varsity face their first real opposition of the season when they meet the Vegreville sextet in an exhibition match at the Varsity rink. Still smarting from the defeat they suffered at the hands of the Hillas Electric squad on Saturday the Varsity boys figure that they have found their weaknesses and are ready to show the Vegreville squad how the game should be played. The game will start at eight o'clock sharp and Talbot is confident that the boys will be able to make full use of their speed and condition to effect a victory.

"Personally, I think the Winnipeg team as it stands would whip the mythical all-star Eastern team as selected by the vote of Eastern newspaper experts."

TED REEVE, writing in the Toronto Evening Telegram, said the Winnipegs showed so much all-round resourcefulness that "we came away wondering how many Canadian teams will, unless bolstered by the American additions, ever reach the Dominion championship heights again, in this decade, at least."

MONTREAL, Dec. 10.—The keen race between Paul Thompson of Chicago Black Hawks and Charlie Conacher of Toronto Maple Leafs for leadership in the National Hockey League scoring swung in favor of the Chicago left winger during the past week, in which Hawks' took part in three games while Toronto, striking an easy week in the schedule, had but one contest.

HI-School Lights ON SPORT

Cold weather has sent the puck-chasers back into action again and, with January approaching, the schools are beginning to look around them for team material. Victoria house league hockey isn't much of a success, for little enthusiasm is being shown. However, the boys have hopes of good junior and bantam squads.

At Technical the "big time" boys have now played another two games in their league. In the first encounter the Outlaws and the Maroons clashed, and after 30 minutes of fast, clean hockey the Outlaws came through with a 2 to 1 victory.

In the second game the fast-skating Red Wings plucked a few feathers from the Black Hawks and then came home with a 2 to 0 win.

Dick Osler's league-leading quintet romped home to another victory in the Garneau house league basketball, when they defeated the Harris squad by 26-15. This puts Osler's team well in the lead with a clean slate of victories.

At Victoria the junior girls played their basketball final on Monday, Thelma Butlin and Dorothy Allan, who both went through their league games without a defeat, were the finalists.

Another three games have been played in the senior boys' league at Victoria. In the first game the two losers of the first games played, Pearce scoring a decisive victory over Dunn 32-18. Kellaway defaulted to Smith and Lupul beat Watson by the high-score game of the league—20 to 6. This leaves Smith and Lupul in the lead, Watson next with a win and a loss, then Pearce with a win and two losses and Dobie and Kellaway without a single victory.

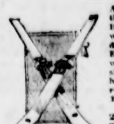

Canada consumed 894,555,000 pounds of sugar last year.

Dominions Meet Soops Thursday

Second clash of the city's two senior amateur hockey clubs—Superiors and Dominions—will take place at the Arena Thursday night when they meet in a regular league fixture, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

In their only other meeting this year, Dominions pulled out with a 4-1 verdict, but Soops are hopeful of reversing that result when they go into action in this second tilt.
